Parking on council agenda

Parking is one subject planned for the two regularly scheduled meetings of the Carmel City Council, June 6 and 13. Two long-standing parking proposals will probably be dropped and a change in the in-lieu parking system is proposed. Also inside, is a quick course in parking rights in the State of California.

Four appointments to be made this month

Appointments will be made this month at the second city council meeting, for two expired terms on the Harrison Memorial Library Board and two on the Carmel Cultural Commission. Enclosed is a duplication of the city form for appointment nominations. Fill it out and send it in, if you wish.

What to do about that drought-struck garden

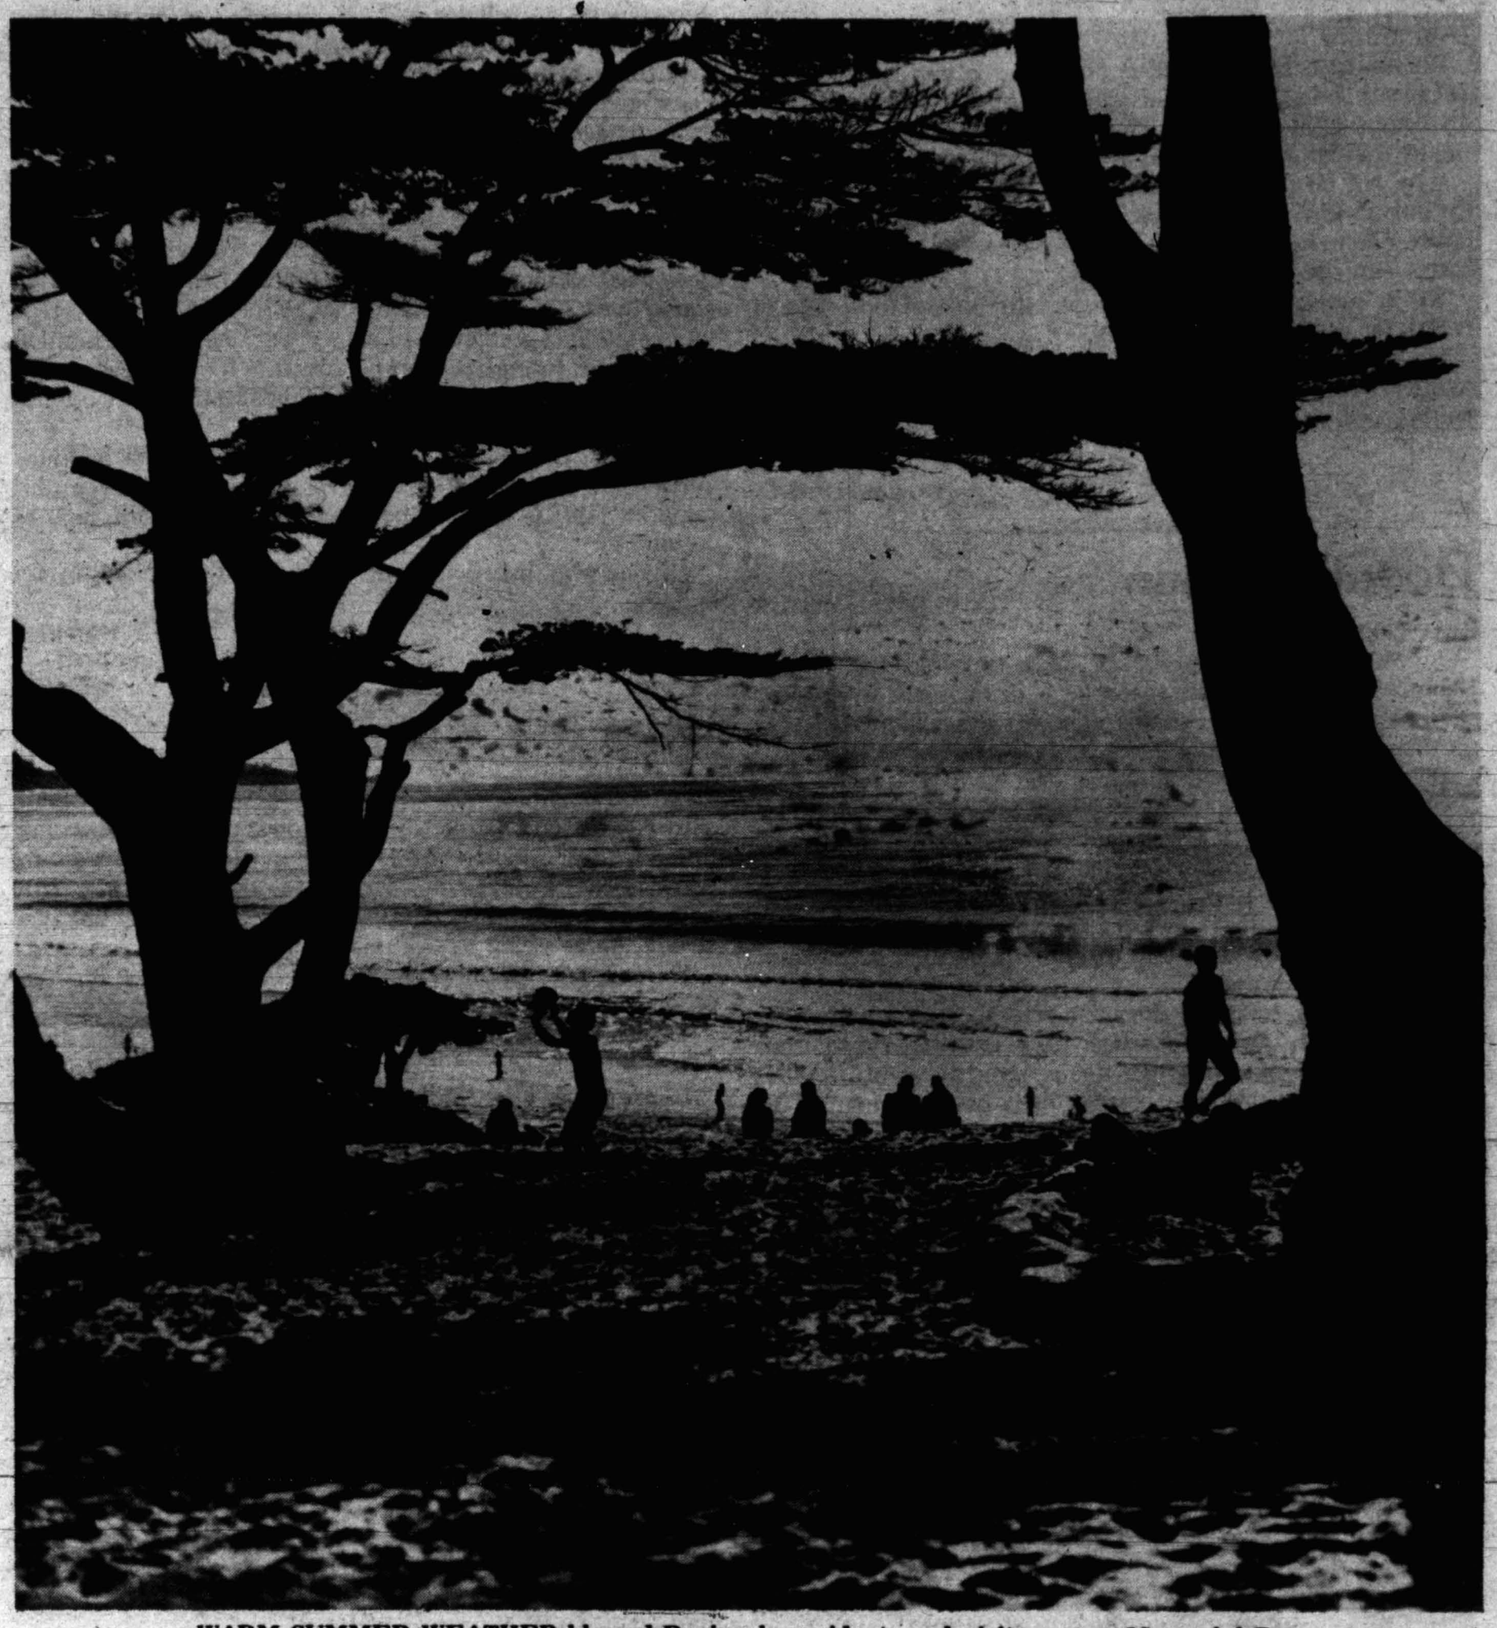
Professional Carmel gardener David Watkins gives some sage advice on how to assess your garden and what to do once you get it down to the bare essentials.

Consultant Bee Epstein talks about time

Time management has nothing to do with organization and everything to do with living, says this expert who teaches people how to use time effectively. She suggests defining goals — how you want to live your life — and making time-use decisions on the basis of these goals.

Woods celebrates spring

Woods School students celebrated their annual Spring Festival with dances, tumbling, a picnic on the lawn and a raffle and bake sale to earn the money to put the finishing touches on the community playground.



WARM SUMMER WEATHER blessed Peninsula residents and visitors over Memorial Day Weekend. Many took to Carmel Beach where barely a wisp of fog blocked the sun for three days.

City to select new administrator by mid month

Within two weeks, Carmel should know who its new city administrator will be.

The Carmel City Council, in executive session, recently narrowed the field of candidates down from 550 to less than 10. Council will be interviewing those candidates at the beginning of this month and final announcement of Hugh Bayless' replacement will come sometime shortly after June 16.

Bayless, who does not officially retire until the end of this year, will leave office in August and use up accrued vacation time. His replacement will probably begin work in July at a salary as yet undetermined.

The council has done its screening of candidates in secret in order to protect those job applicants presently employed. The committee on administration, Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilman Mike Brown, worked for over a month whittling the number of applicants down to a manageable number, and recently the entire council has been discussing candidates during executive session, as permitted under the Brown Act for personnel matters.

The council finally determined those candidates that it is interested in interviewing and will pay for the candidates' expenses when they travel to Carmel sometime at the beginning of this month for interviews.

Job change

The new city administrator, whoever he or she may be, will be wielding a lot more power than Bayless ever did.

The council agreed with the recommendations made by Bayless that the new city administrator should have overall responsibility for "the operation of the City, under the direction of the City Council..." Bayless now has administrative charge of the city but the only boss the rest of the city has is the five man council itself.

In fact, the council went one step further than Bayless had recommended when it adopted the May 23 report of the committee on administration. Although Bayless suggested the city administrator be given hire and fire powers over city employees, he exempted the present department heads. If the council makes its unanimous intentions into law, the new city administrator will be responsible for all employee matters — including those of present department heads.

Aside from this one change, the council basically plans to follow the Bayless recommendations in the granting of powers to the new city administrator. As seen by the city council, the following describes the position of the next city administrator for Carmel:

a. Continue the title of "City Administrator," regardless of any similarity or dissimilarity to the description of the position of City Manager in other cities.

b. Make the City Administrator responsible for the effective operation of the City, under the direction of the City Council, handling internal administration and running a tight, efficient and economical operation.

c. Assure that all laws and ordinances are enforced and that the orders of the City Council are carried out.

d. Supervise and be responsible for all fiscal and budgetary matters, advising the City Council on the financial needs of the city, current and future. Supervise budget preparation and control.

e. Make the City Administrator responsible for all employee actions, including recruiting, employment, advancement, and discharge. In all personnel matters, he shall act in cooperation with the department heads concerned, in accordance with guidelines approved by the City Council.

f. The City Administrator should provide administrative direction for the day-to-day operation of all departmental activities, as the head of the city management team.

g. The City Administrator should be responsible for the preparation of agendas, the provision of all necessary clerical functions for the Council, and the maintenance of necessary records.

Sign violations on Sunday?

Driving through Carmel one Sunday, Councilman Mike Brown says he counted over 20 violations of the city's sign ordinance — all by realtors or people selling their own home.

Brown claims, in so many words, that while the cat's away (building inspectors don't work on Sunday) the mice will play. Although the item does not appear on the June 6th council agenda, Brown plans to bring up the problem of sign violations on Sunday.

In the case of temporary signs, such as those advertising the sale of property or announcing an open house, the city has set down strict regulations.

—Only one sign per property frontage.

—No sign shall exceed three square feet.

—No lettering may exceed three inches in height.

Furthermore, the signs can only indicate that the property is for sale, lease or exchange; by the owner or agent's name, address and telephone number; and information such as "open house" or "inquire within".

Temporary signs may only be located on the property that is for sale, and not over public property. After sale or lease agreement is reached, the sign must be removed.

Letters

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for length and style, but without changing the intent of the letter writer. Viewpoints on all matters are acceptable following the guidelines of good taste. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, but names may be withheld upon request.

Parking complaint

Dear Editor:

We have visited Carmel on numerous occasions and have yet to see the nice little passages and cute stores. We spend an hour trying to park. Then, you worry about getting a ticket, for a one hour limit is an impossible time.

Why not do the same as Eugene, Salem and a couple of California towns. Have meters and an area for out-of-state cars. The meter could require 25 to 40 cents for three or four hours (marked "strictly enforced").

We in Vancouver have three or four blocks (one side of each) for out of Province cars.

We realize land is expensive, but we decided not to come again for three or four years. Friends of our came back last year and said the same thing.

Mr. & Mrs. N.R. Ferguson

Doolittle again

Dear Editor:

On May 5 The Carmel Pine Cone reported use of the Doolittle property for storage of large drain pipes. In spite of several protests to city council members concerning this use, the drain pipes, as of May 25, had not been removed.

At the time Carmel acquired the property from Mr. Doolittle, a commitment by the then acting city council to preserve the site as a green belt area became a matter of record. I feel that honoring that commitment is a moral obligation of succeeding city councils. If the present council members have other aims and plan to abandon this responsibility, they should state their intentions in a clear and forthright manner.

The use of the site under the guise of temporary expediency for corporation yard purposes or for depositing refuse can lead to irretrievable damage to the natural beauty of the canyon within a short time. I vigorously protest such use of the Doolittle property.

Water witching

Dear Editor:

Three hundred devotees attended a revival-type meeting at which Wayne Cook, a water-witch, announced locating an "underground river in Carmel Valley that could supply the Peninsula forever".

Then eleven earth scientists presented factual data on the water crisis at the conference on the geology of the Monterey Bay region. Only two hundred persons showed up. Just one member of the county Board of Supervisors attended (Fourth District Supervisor Michael Moore), and one Urban Planner (Eric Dittmer, representing the city of Salinas).

Something is drastically wrong when a self-styled "faith healer" can draw three hundred, while the best talent around in geology can only draw two-thirds of this.

Wayne Cook, a "Bible-thumping maverick", president of the Academy of Divine Healing Dynamics — through his Peninsula Water Fund — gave a water survey demonstration of the "untapped underground river" at Garland Park last Saturday. Donations are being solicited. Cook trumpets that he has found "a vast underground water supply, an underground river 44 yards wide and 370 feet deep, and that there's enough for eons," his ads proclaim. He quotes Isaiah: "I will open rivers in high places and fountains in the midst of valleys."

As a former United Nations Geologist, and a groundwater development advisor to a Minister of Agriculture, I say water-witching does not work as a reliable technique to locate groundwater.

A hole 370 feet in just about any part of Carmel Valley will encounter the following: First, saturated alluvium serving as our aquifer down to depths ranging from 60 feet at Robinson Canyon, to 120 feet on the Garland Ranch, to 160 feet at Rancho Canada, to 200 feet at the new Thunderbird bookshop at the mouth of the valley. The water table will be encountered at between 17 to 25 feet. Below the alluvium one can expect to encounter the Monterey shale formation. This can range from 200 to 300 feet thick or more, and is essentially a barrier to the downward flow of water. It may contain a few gallons of water in cracks, but will not yield even a domestic supply to most wells. Below this, is the so-called Tularcitos Member, an arkosic sandstone. This unit is not much of an aquifer, but will yield domestic supplies to wells that are properly completed in it. About 30 wells in the Robinson Canyon area penetrate it, and the average yield is less than 10 gallons per minute — hardly Cook's "underground river". Below this tight, clayey sandstone is an even tighter naturally cemented conglomerate and shale sequence — the lower Tularcitos "redbeds". This unit is unable to yield water to wells except from fractures, and its transmitting rate is essentially so low that geologists ignore its potential as a water carrier.

Below the redbeds is a hard, impervious granite-like rock called granodiorite. It too, is considered a barrier to water, and we call it "basement" rock. It will not even yield a few pints of water to wells.

So at 370 feet, even under the most favorable circumstances, a well located by dowsing, or by any other means, in the Carmel Valley will encounter either clayey sandstone below the alluvium, fractured tight shale, or cemented redbeds — or ultimately, impervious granite. No "vast underground supply."

Cal-Am is testing the deep Tularcitos sandstones underlying the Monterey shale right now. Why take up a collection to mollify Mr. Cook when Cal-Am is already testing the strata under the alluvium? Their site was located by geologists employed by Dames & Moore, Los Angeles-based consultants. If Cal-Am is unsuccessful in finding a large yielding well (I predict that they will be), they plan to cement off the lower formations and perforate in the upper alluvium — a tried and true aquifer that yields abundant water to wells.

Mr. Cook, the dowser, is an amateur. What does he know about hydrogeology, a specialty of the earth sciences that requires years of postgraduate training? In a word, next to nothing.

Anyone who invests a penny in his fund is foolish, in my opinion.

'Kiss Me Kate'

Dear Editor:

I write to you as a concerned student presently attending Carmel High School. While reading your usually tasteful publication, I came across an item which not only aggravated me, (and countless others, no doubt), but also struck me as being exceptionally tactless.

The article I refer to is Bruce Horovitz's review of the CHS production of "Kiss Me, Kate".

An old theatrical proverb comes to mind. "Bad dress rehearsal, good show." Keeping this in mind, I find it exceedingly difficult to believe that a community newspaper could possibly consider reviewing a high school production with such thorough criticism; much less, a dress rehearsal.

To the best of my knowledge, I've found that the CHS Drama Department gears its motives towards an educational rather than monetary atmosphere. Please take note, Mr. Horovitz.

The high school's location and facilities, although limited, are made the most of. It is a primary objective of this department to offer suitable and quality performances for a modest fee. In return, the school receives community recognition and support.

Perhaps I'm being naive by assuming that the Carmel Pine Cone would naturally support its community high school.

Perhaps I, and others who feel the same, are being too sensitive. Opinions are not made to agree. But may I take this opportunity to toss Mr. Horovitz a parting shot. The line between "high school" and "professional" is much broader than what obviously meets his eye.

A Homecoming

By AL EISNER
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

WE MUST BE the luckiest people in the world. Judy and I are raising two healthy children in one of the most beautiful places on earth, and now we have the opportunity to publish The Carmel Pine Cone and The Carmel Valley Outlook.

Some of the persons reading this may be aware that I served as editor of this newspaper from 1969-1973. In April, 1973, we took every bit of our life savings, went deeply into debt, and began The Monterey Peninsula Review, a weekly newspaper to serve the thriving visitor industry. With the combination of timing, luck, some skill and plenty of hard work, we made a success of our venture. We found plenty of satisfaction in producing a quality product that met a real need... as a matter of fact, despite the long hours and the tension, we both still wonder why we also get paid for doing work that we love so much.

Now we are at the helm of the three newspapers. We both feel very good about it; although we haven't had much time to reflect on what we've done, it seemed like the right thing, the inevitable thing for us to do.

CARMEL AND CARMEL VALLEY are small communities, and we're certain that folks are speculating about what changes may occur in their local newspapers because of the new ownership. So, this might be the time and place to reiterate our commitment to doing what we can to preserve the "quality of life" or "lifestyle" or "environment" or whatever other description one can apply to the charm, the loveliness, the awesome beauty we are all lucky to enjoy. Think about it for a moment...other people go to great lengths and great expense to enjoy a few moments in this wondrous place...we live here, and enjoy these pleasures every day.

During those rewarding years when Judy and I labored at the Pine Cone and Outlook, we felt fortunate that we were able to play a part in the never-ending fight to preserve the precious qualities that we treasure so much. Our commitment was — and still remains — to provide the people in these communities with ample information about matters that could have tremendous impact on their lives, so they can partake of the democratic process.

One memorable battle that comes to mind was the struggle to preserve the artichoke fields farmed by the Odello family at the mouth of the Carmel River. An aroused citizenry rose to the battle cry and sent would-be developers scurrying back to their posh suites in the big cities...then they showed the depth of their own commitment by raising funds (matched eventually by the State of California) to purchase the western acreage of the artichoke ranch to preserve it as a greenbelt for future generations. We are proud to have taken part in that titanic struggle.

IF WE COULD HAVE converted all the good wishes we have received these past weeks — by letter, by phone and in person — into currency, Judy and I would be very rich indeed. It makes our jobs a lot easier knowing that there are so many people out there who are in our corner and who wish us well.

The recurrent theme in all these greetings seems to be, "Welcome home" or "You've come full circle" or "Isn't it wonderful that the papers will be back in local ownership?"

You have placed a heavy responsibility in our hands. We are confident we can meet this challenge and will be helped greatly by the dedicated group of people who are writing and producing the newspapers right now. One of the unexpected "extras" we acquired was a talented, hard-working crew. We hope we can provide the leadership and the know-how to inspire this fine group of young people to produce the finest weekly newspapers in the nation. That is our aim — nothing more or less — for if we simply reflect the beauty of the Carmel-Carmel Valley areas, then we will produce the most beautiful newspapers in the country.

If we seem to be aiming high, then what of it? Do Carmel and Carmel Valley deserve any less?

SOME FOLKS are going to be disappointed, no doubt, when the policy of the newspapers becomes apparent. Those who would pave us over in their desire for material gain will have to contend with an informed electorate that will pull in the reins. Politicians who might have hoped for a sleepy electorate will find, we hope, that they have to deal with informed, dedicated people who will demand responsiveness from the people elected to represent them. Finally, some extremists who wish to "pull up the drawbridge" now that they have landed here will be disappointed perhaps, when their local newspaper says, instead, that limited numbers of newcomers should be allowed to enjoy the beauties of the Carmel-Carmel Valley area provided their presence does not degrade the environment or quality of life.

The current drought has stalled many large projects that would have had significant impact on the lifestyle of local residents. If and when the local water problem is over, some local governmental agencies will be subjected to heavy pressure from developers, speculators and others interested in profiting from their investment in land. We hope we can be an integral part of the decision-making process as these events unfold.

Above all, dear readers and friends, this is going to be a trip we are going to enjoy. Won't you join us in this adventure?

May scrap two proposals

Council to look at parking

The long search for solutions to Carmel's parking problems appears on the verge of taking one step forward this month and two steps back.

While the city council has scheduled a reappraisal of in-lieu parking policies for its second monthly meeting (June 13), two other proposals aimed at mitigating Carmel's car problem will probably be dropped at next Monday's meeting.

The proposal to require off-street parking space on the site of new homes in Carmel, or on sites where the house is under major renovation, will receive bad reviews from the council's Committee on Public Welfare.

Councilman Mike Brown will also bring a preferential parking proposal off the abeyance calendar, only to report on its unconstitutionality. This ordinance would have allowed residents with stickers on their vehicles to park twice as long in the commercial district as non-residents.

Off Street

After being passed on by the planning commission, the off-street parking proposal was referred by council to public welfare committee members Mike Brown and Helen Arnold. At the June 6 meeting they plan a negative report on the proposed ordinance, saying they fear it would lead to the removal of trees, more asphalt, and a change in the character of lots — while failing to guarantee that it will stop more cars from being parked on the street.

The proposal, as drawn up by the planning commission, was aimed at reducing the number of parked cars along the residential streets. Many homes in Carmel, according to the commission, have little if any provision for on-site parking.

The idea behind the proposed new ordinance was not to force the construction of garages or the paving of driveways, but to force new homeowners and those involved in major remodeling, to set aside some kind of parking pad on their property for a vehicle. This parking pad would not interfere with the allowable lot coverage for a piece of property.

But, because of the small

Cultural Commission and Library Board openings

Four appointments to be made in June.

"One of our community's greatest assets is the substantial number of qualified local citizens who serve without compensation on the several City commissions and on the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees."

That sentence starts off an open invitation to the people of Carmel to make nominations for the City's three commissions and one board. Four expired terms will be examined at the council's second June meeting (June 13): two spots on the Cultural Commission and two on the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees.

On the Cultural Commission the terms of Dorothy Chapman and Eben Whittlesey are up in June. On the library board Pat Sippel and Herb Blanks have expired terms.

As yet there has been no public announcement by any of the members currently up for reappointment as to whether or not they wish to be considered for another term but under the stated nomination system all four of these terms are technically up for grabs. The mayor considers all submitted nominations and makes his appointment with the consent of council.

Although the big controversy lately has been over appointments to the Planning Commission the upcoming four appointments have the potential of being equal in political significance.

The Harrison Memorial Library Board is embroiled in negotiations with the county over the future course of Carmel area libraries. Library board members particularly since they are not under the direct control of the council will have much to say in the near future about the city's county library contract and carmel's participation in the building of a library at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

For over a year now, council has been quietly eyeing the cultural commission and Sunset Center. Norberg and Councilman David Hughes were appointed a year ago to a committee looking into the possible revamping of Carmel's cultural community activities.

The importance of commission appointments was brought out last month by Councilman David Hughes who accused Norberg of "appointment without reference to objectivity fairness or community needs..."

Hughes was referring to the appointment of several Old Carmel members to the planning commission and a committee looking into the tour bus situation. Norberg, in the case of Les Gross' first unsuccessful appointment to planning commission reportedly took some council members by surprise on the night of the meeting announcing that the opening existed and the nominee was Gross.

"I'm tired of being surprised at council meetings with these names," Hughes complained last month. Councilwoman Helen Arnold agreed, saying she would like more time to study appointees.

Norberg subsequently agreed to send out a memorandum on his intended appointments well in advance of the council meeting, a move Councilman Bernard Anderson had suggested at an earlier council meeting.

Roberts to Head Planning Commission

Meanwhile, at last month's annual planning commission meeting held for the election of officers, Dorothea Roberts and 11-year member of the commission, was named chairperson.

Roberts appointed commissioner Robert Stephenson as vice-chairman and herself and commissioner Paul Sletton to the powerful Land Use Committee.

Edward K. Neroda who has served 9½ years on the commission including chairmanship last year was honored at a reception following the regular meeting.

Also honored was commission member Thomas Hawley, who has also stepped down from the commission. Last month the city council appointed Dr. Donald Davidson to replace Hawley and Manfred Prescott to replace Neroda. Roberts also made the following committee appointments:

Design review committee: Eileen Thompson, Robert Stevenson, and Les Gross.

Land Use Committee: Dorothea Roberts, Paul Sletton.

Environmental Review, Planning and Conservation: Dorothea Roberts, Eileen Thompson.

Traffic and Circulation: Les Gross.

Administrative: Dorothea Roberts and Planning Director Robert Griggs.

Committees will meet at these dates and times: Design Review—8:30 a.m., second Wednesday of each month; Land Use—8:30 a.m., Friday following third Wednesday of each month. Traffic and Circulation—4:00 p.m., third Tuesday of each month. The Environmental Review and Administrative Committees will meet as required.

The Planning Commission will continue to hold their meetings on the third and fourth Wednesday of each month.

size of Carmel lots, and because of the existence of large numbers of trees on them, Brown and Arnold will be recommending against requiring any such parking spot. Brown said he also feels the requirement might be touching upon the rights of property owners.

Preferential parking

A Brown proposal that's been in the works for almost a year now — preferential parking for residents — will be voluntarily scrapped by Brown Monday night after the submission of a negative opinion by California Legislative Counsel Bion Gregory.

Although Brown had set his hopes on Section 22507 of the State's Vehicle Code, and a recent ordinance put into effect by the City of San Francisco, he was told by Gregory that the streets of California belong to the people of California — not individual communities — and discrimination for parking purposes is unconstitutional.

While Gregory noted the vehicle code allows "a designation of certain streets upon which preferential parking privileges shall be given to residents and merchants..." he states that this section of the code goes against the state constitution and may even conflict with another section of the vehicle code itself.

Brown had hoped for a legal way to grant Carmel residents twice the posted parking time on commercial streets in the city. He had proposed the use of special stickers for Carmel cars that would be noted by the parking control officers. A resident parking in a one-hour zone could remain for two hours and a resident parking in a two hour zone could remain for four hours.

All that, according to the State, would be unconstitutional and impossible to uphold if challenged, so Brown will be taking the proposal off the abeyance calendar and dropping it.

PARKING has been a perpetual problem in Carmel. Solutions come and go, but the crammed streets remain. The council once again is turning its attention to the situation.

A quick course on parking rights

That parking spot out in front of your house? It belongs to everybody in the state.

Residents of San Francisco were having a parking problem. Commuters from outside the city were driving into residential neighborhoods and leaving their cars parked there all day while taking the Muni into the downtown business district.

The result was a preferential parking ordinance passed last August that allowed residents to purchase $10 annual permits for unlimited parking. Non residents were restricted to one to two hours in a parking place.

Could Carmel use a similar ordinance for a slightly different purpose — to allow residents shopping in downtown Carmel twice the parking time of non residents? City Councilman Mike Brown asked State Senator Robert Nimmo who, in turn, asked State Legislative Council Bion M. Gregory.

Such an ordinance, wrote Gregory, would be invalid because, "...the streets of a city belong to the people of the state and every citizen of the state has a right to the use thereof..."

Gregory went on to say, "in our opinion, the adoption of an ordinance of the type in question would result in an unreasonable discrimination against persons who were not residents or neighborhood merchants... Local ordinances cannot constitutionally be adopted which would unreasonably discriminate against non residents."

Although San Francisco residents argued that they should be allowed to park somewhere near the home on which they were paying property taxes, Gregory believes they have no such implicit right.

Citing court decisions, Gregory feels that, "other than the rights of ingress and egress, the owner or occupier of adjacent property has no property rights in the streets except such as are held in common with all other members of the public... We think that a resident or neighborhood merchant adjacent to designated streets has no more 'right' to park than any other member of the public at large."

Gregory goes on to say, "Accordingly, it is our opinion that an ordinance of a city would be invalid which would establish a parking plan under which a city would issue permits or stickers to its residents to be displayed upon their vehicles which would allow them to park, in designated areas which are restricted as to the length of time parking is permitted, for a period of time which is twice that permitted for the parking of nonresidents' vehicles in such areas."

In other words, the parking laws must be equal for residents and non residents alike. And that favorite parking spot you have out on the street for your car — it belongs to the people of California.

Get your garden down to basic essentials -- and mulch, mulch, mulch

Make a cold assessment of your garden, says professional Carmel gardener David Watkins, and take out the expendibles.

In this second drought year, you've got to put emotion aside, according to Watkins, and assess your garden and shrubs in terms of replacement value and growth time. Take out the plants that are doing poorly, forget the annuals and perennials, and abandon those big stretches of lawn.

Get your garden down to the basic essentials, Watkins says, and work on a good planned watering program from there.

Watkins is coordinator of a four-week symposium now going on at Monterey Peninsula College. The symposium, which will continue June 7 and 14 at 7:30 p.m. in lecture forum 103, is entitled "Garden Survival in a Drought Year on the Monterey Peninsula."

Watkins arranged the symposium, he says, not to get more customers for professional gardeners like himself (Watkins says he has more work than ever in this drought year), but to pass on professional information on drought gardening to home gardeners. The symposium features literature, exhibits, handouts, lectures and question and answer sessions.

Briefly, Watkins advises that gardeners begin their drought gardening program by mulching around the plants they want to retain. He says he has about five inches of mulch around some marigolds that are doing beautifully in his own yard — and the last time he watered them was in the fall.

More realistically, most plants during the summer should get by with watering once every three weeks, Watkins says, once properly mulched, possibly to a depth of three inches.

But there are many variables. So how do you tell if a plant should be watered?

"You don't assume it needs water because its been seven days since you last watered it," Watkins explains.

A moisture probe, which reads the amount of moisture in the soil, is handy (costing $10-$35). But a simpler method is just to take a trowel and see how far down the dry soil goes. If it is dry below two inches, watering is called for.

'Don't assume it needs water just because it's been seven days since it was last watered.'

"But if the top inch of your soil is dry," Watkins says, "it's a mulch in itself — a dust mulch. You don't want the top inch wet."

Keeping the top of the soil wet encourages the plant roots to come back up to the surface, seeking moisture. Then a prolonged surface dryness will finish the plant off quickly.

The idea, Watkins stresses, is infrequent, deep soakings.

"NEVER SPRINKLE," Watkins says with genuine passion in his voice, "that's the single most important thing."

Deep, infrequent soakings will encourage the roots to go down deep chasing the water table, thus allowing more infrequent watering. Also, the deeper the roots, the healthier the plants since the roots are down there picking up trace minerals from the sub soil.

But don't just look at the soil, Watkins says, you can also look at the plant for signs of stress that signal "Irrigate."

If new growth is wilted instead of erect, that's about the last point at which you can delay watering. But older leaves will tend to yellow and drop off this year and Watkins says that's no reason to panic. It's a kind of self defense mechanism that reduces the foilage the root system has to support.

Watkins recommends the drip system over all other systems of watering. It slowly infuses water into the soil while keeping the soil surface dry.

Expensive drip systems are available, but you can also make your own simply by cutting one hole in the bottom of a plastic gallon jug, burying the jug halfway in the ground by the plant, and filling with water.

"At last we've found a way to recycle those one gallon plastic jugs," Watkins says.

Next Tuesday, the water symposium will cover topics like "How Plants React to Drought Conditions," "Mulch," and "Will our Trees Survive?" After the session, members of the landscape gardeners' association will hold open panel discussion.

June 14 will feature "Watersaving Landscapes," and an open forum for discussion of the conservation of the Peninsula's water resources called, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow."

Subdivision ordinance to come before council

The Carmel City Council, at its first June meeting Monday, will be looking at a dinosaur of a planning law — the subdivision ordinance.

Not only is this set of regulations uncodified, it is in conflict with existing zoning in the city, in conflict with the city's general plan, and in conflict with recent state legislation.

Actually, the subdivision ordinance was borrowed from the county, swiftly adapted for Carmel use by the planning commission in 1968, and passed into law by the city council in February 1969. The reason for all the haste was a proposal to develop the Flanders Property which the city later purchased for park lands.

But in their haste to adopt some kind of an ordinance controlling major subdivisions like the Flanders proposal, the city left in a lot of regulations that apply more to county than the city of Carmel.

Among other things, the ordinance calls for the installation of curbs, gutters and sidewalks. It also specifies a lot depth to width ratio that does not work out for Carmel's 40 by 100 foot lots.

Reorganizing the subdivision ordinance to fit the entire city will be a major job, according the Planning Director Bob Griggs — one he has tried to accomplish at various times for the past two years.

The proposal before council will be whether this ordinance should be revised and then codified. Griggs estimates that there are a few possibilities for major subdivision left in Carmel—enough to make the revision worthwhile.

But Griggs also figures that, working exclusively on the ordinance, it would take him at least a month to come up with a draft since the old ordinance would first have to be repealed and Griggs would be forced to start from scratch. After public hearings in the planning commission and the city council, the ordinance could conceivably be passed in five months, if no changes were needed. Being realistic, Griggs says, it would take longer than that.

Although the subdivision ordinance is full of problems and conflicts with city zoning, Griggs says he has used it successfully in the past as a weapon against certain development.

Griggs used it in conjunction with the Patterson proposal on the sand dunes, the Stean-Stevens condominiums, the Jack Miller condominiums and the Svengaards property.

But the ordinance does have a provision in it which allows Griggs to ignore it when it does not apply to Carmel zoning. The ordinance states that it is the purpose of the ordinance to "encourage new concepts and innovations in the arrangement of building sites within subdivisions. Deviations from the traditional mechanical approach are encouraged..."

The state, in 1974, in the repeal of the Subdivision Map Act, requires "comprehensive revision of procedures for approval of subdivisions."

In leaving the subdivision ordinance uncodified, the city has put it into law, but not placed it into the city code where other zoning matters are. Minor subdivisions are taken care of under city zoning law within city code, requiring the use permit process. But the major subdivision ordinance — with all its problems — hangs in limbo.

Viewing life through the arts

By Peter Meckel
Dean, Hidden Valley Music Seminars

IN LOOKING THROUGH the directory of Opera America recently, I noticed that the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble ranks number six in America in terms of the number of performances presented each year. At the end of this season Hidden Valley will have mounted five productions for a total of 51 performances. It was astounding to realize that this little project has that standing in American opera. Obviously, the figures are somewhat misleading because of the small size of our house; none the less, it bespeaks a very active and well-supported institution that can mount such a program.

In mentioning this fact to the new publisher of this newspaper, he asked that I share with you some thoughts on the why's and how's at Hidden Valley.

I BELIEVE that resident in every human being is a need and a capability to view life, his own and others', through the experience of the arts. From the beginning of time with ritual, drawings, song and dance, man has expressed himself to himself. For the young, this experience provides a safe and constructive way to explore choices in emotional, intellectual and spiritual living. For the old, the artistic experience is a point of reference for reflection, evaluation and reaffirmation. Man simply cannot successfully negotiate the joys and demands of existence without taking a moment from time-to-time to step back, see where he has been, and decide where he is going.

While these processes seem somewhat vague, they are, I believe, essential to happy, healthy living. It is with that in mind that those of us involved in Hidden Valley have come to think of our task as a noble one which has substantive and, if not measurable, at least discernible effects on the people whose lives we touch. It is easy to forget that we have embarked with a noble cause when we are overwhelmed by the day-to-day difficulties of trying to meet that cause. For us too, it becomes important to stop, take stock of ourselves, and feel the sense of rededication which invariably develops when we do that.

THIS SUMMER begins the sixteenth year of Hidden Valley's existence. Those sixteen years have brought us in contact with nearly a thousand remarkably talented instrumentalists and vocalists through our summer programs; have given us the opportunity to work with many of the most outstanding performing artists in the United States; have allowed us to participate in teaching the world's most promising young flutists; and have recently put us in daily contact with several of America's most talented young singers.

What have these people taken away from us? For many, the opportunity has been principally one in which they have found themselves surrounded by others of like talent and have been able to study and perform music in an environment especially designed for that purpose. For others it has been an awakening of talent which even they never recognized was there, for still others, it has been a difficult realization of the fact that the performing world is not the best use of their particular abilities.

We have had the chance over the years to deal with people on some of the most basic and intimate human levels, sharing with them great joys and seemingly unbearable anguish. Through it all has run the thought that the greatest fulfillment a person can find is in learning his reason for being. If we can put young artists in a position that they can recognize the need and channels for their talent we can assist them in finding one of the most important elements in their lives.

THE "HOW'S" of Hidden Valley, though more mundane, are, in some ways, as challenging as the "why's". Being a small nonprofit educational institution, Hidden Valley is dependent in large measure on the generosity of its local community and the musical world. We have been blessed by having a home in a community which has appreciated and understood Hidden Valley's goals and sometimes faltering efforts to reach them. Our steady growth and continued dedication to quality in all that we do has, I believe, been a major factor in the community's continuing interest and support.

We have endeavored to reach into the community in as active and as meaningful a fashion as possible. Uses of our campus range from service clubs holding barbecues to family reunions and weddings to government agency meetings to classes held in conjunction with the Monterey Peninsula College. We want to make Hidden Valley a place people are pleased to visit knowing that each experience they have here will be one of enrichment and fulfillment.

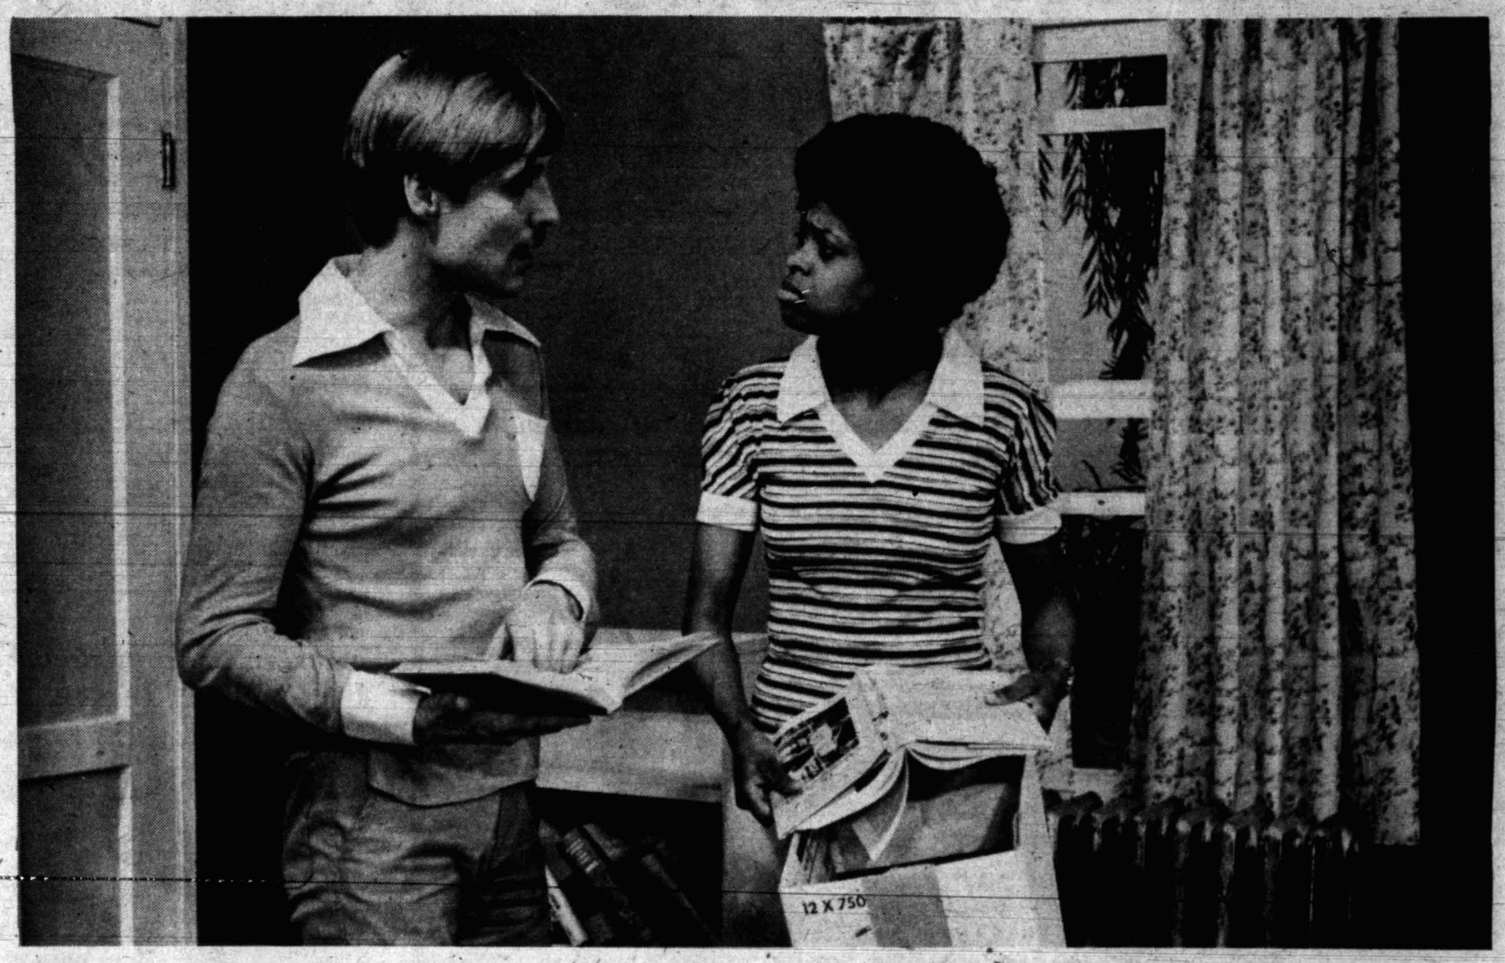
Carmel Pine Cone June 2, 1977



"LOVE IS A TIME OF DAY," a comedy, is now playing at the Studio Theatre in Carmel. Pictured here are Dannie Gochnauer and Junanda Marshall.

Magic Flute opens today

Mozart's fairy tale opera, The Magic Flute, will open Thursday, June 2, as the final presentation in the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble's 1977 season. It will be performed at the Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley and Ford Rds., Carmel Valley.

Additional performances will be staged Saturday, June 4; Sunday, June 5; Wednesday, June 8; Thursday, June 9; Saturday, June 11; Sunday, June 12; Wednesday, June 15; Thursday, June 16; Saturday, June 18; and Sunday, June 19.

Curtain times are 7:30 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday; 8 p.m., Saturday; and 2:30 p.m., Sunday.

The large cast includes several singers well-known to Hidden Valley audiences, such as Mary Hinrichs, who will sing Papagena; John Giger who will be the Speaker; and Judith James who will play the princess Pamina.

Other principal roles will be taken by Neil Rosenschein, Tamino; Robert Swedberg, Papageno; Starleigh Goltry, Queen of Night; Louis Lebherz, Sarastro; and Michael Fager, Monostatos.

Velvali Lao D'Ayxa, Maria Meyer and Patricia Shuman will sing The Three Ladies, and Nadine Pelle and Danae Chateauneuf will play slave companions of Monostatos.

The Armored Men roles will be taken by Steven Gifford and David Goodman, and the Genii will be interpreted by three members of the Phoenix Boy's Choir – Stephen Goodfriend, Philip Roth and David Ryder.

Randall Bare is music director and conductor, and Robert Darling is stage director and set designer.

A synopsis of The Magic Flute plot, which is divided into two acts and 11 scenes, is given in a separate story elsewhere in this issue.

Tickets are $8.50. They are available from Hidden Valley Music Seminars, P.O. Box 116, Carmel Valley 93924, or from the ticket outlets listed in the Hidden Valley advertisement in this issue.

For further information, phone 659-3115.

'Hello Dolly' opens at Wharf

Hello, Dolly!, the play that made Carol Channing a star, brought Pearl Bailey to Broadway and created a larger-than-life motion picture role for Barbra Streisand, will open Friday, June 3, at the Wharf Theatre, Monterey. Opening weekend performances are scheduled at 8:30 p.m., Friday and Saturday, and Sunday at 8.

The modern-day musical was based on The Matchmaker by Thornton Wilder. Hello, Dolly! was written by Michael Stewart with music and lyrics by Jerry Herman.

The story keeps the spotlights on Dolly Levi, one of the most irrepressible heroines in musical comedy history, and her efforts to marry Horace Vander Gelder, the "half a millionaire." Dolly plans to pry Horace loose from his fortune and spread the green stuff around in the style to which her late husband accustomed her.

The play opened on Broadway in 1963 and catapulted Carol Channing to stardom; Pearl Bailey later appeared in the title role, as did Barbra Streisand in the popular film version.

Among the show-stopping tunes are Put on Your Sunday Clothes, It Only Takes a Moment, Motherhood, Before the Parade Passes By and Hello, Dolly!, one of the most famous title songs in musical history.

Starring as Dolly in the local production is Donna Garland; her real-life husband Joe appears as Horace Vander Gelder. The pair wowed audiences last summer as Golde and Tevye in the Monterey Peninsula College production of Fiddler on the Roof.

Magic Flute good fairy tale

The plot of Mozart's The Magic Flute, which opens Thursday, June 2, at the Hidden Valley Theatre, has most of the elements of a good fairy tale, including a princess, prince, queen, genii, high priests, lowly slaves and bird-feathered people.

In brief, Tamino, a prince, sees a picture of Pamina, a princess and daughter of the Queen of Night, and falls instantly in love with her.

Pamina seems to be in the power of Sarastro, a high priest, who is believed to be bad but is really good.

Tamino, accompanied by Papageno, a bird-catcher who wears a costume of bird feathers, sets off to free his newfound love, armed with a magic flute given to him by Pamina's mother, who is believed to be good but turns out to be bad.

Tamino and Papageno find Pamina and also find out that Sarastro is a good man.

The prince and princess are then forced to undergo severe ordeals before they can reach happiness. Papageno's happiness will lie in marriage to Papagena, who also sports bird feathers.

Among the ordeals that Tamino and Papageno must endure is not talking to women. Pamina misundertands, thinks that Tamino no longer loves her and tries to commit suicide. Papagena simply disappears in disgust, at which point Papageno decides to hang himself.

Dissuaded from such drastic action, Papageno rings the magic chimes given to him by the Queen of Night and Papagena reappears. They go off happily.

Tamino and Pamina are put through ordeals of fire and water (he playing the magic flute the entire time), and they are then welcomed to the fellowship of Sarastro's Temple.

Along the way, the Queen of Night and her followers are made to disappear forever by Sarastro.

In the final scene, the lovers are acclaimed because they have found the high place of wisdom.

The staging of such scenes is of course extremely important to a fantasy like The Magic Flute, and Hidden Valley promises a full quota of illusions.

Two significant award competitions are offered in the city of Carmel this year. One is a first — The City of Carmel, inaugurating a Festival of Firsts, has announced an award of $2,000 for an unpublished play, musical, or opera. The chosen work might also be produced in one of the theatres of the city. Send your manuscripts to the Director's Office, Sunset Center, P.O. Box 5066, Carmel, CA 93921. Scripts have been coming in and a panel of judges will be selected to review the works. The deadline for entries is August 31, 1977.

The other award — The Ferguson Award announced by the Friends of Photography with a grant of $1,500, is in its sixth year. This competition provides an individual photographer with cash assistance to advance his or her photographic career. Applications will be accepted between June 15 and June 30, 1977. A proposal, supportive material, and proper packaging and mailing is required. For more information, please call the Friends of Photography Gallery located at Sunset Center, 624-6330.

For the past few months I have been receiving many inquiries regarding the availability of theatre arts workshops. In a plan that will eventually include workshop productions, more varied classes in theatre, and a musical and dance program, Sunset Center is planning a few classes to start this month. The following classes are available for immediate registration and each class will have a limited enrollment.

Dr. Lewis Heniford will conduct a special course in the Introduction to Chekhov. This instructional course will have three meetings on Tuesday nights starting June 28 with an enrollment fee of $9.00.

Marcia Hovick, director of the Staff Players and Children's Experimental Theatre, will offer an acting workshop Monday nights from 7-9 p.m. starting June 13. Classes will meet for five weeks at a cost of $15.00.

Dan Gatch, prominent among the Peninsula directors and founder of the Poetic Drama Institute, will conduct a class in Irish Theatre — an overview of theatre during the Irish Renaissance, emphasis on Yeats, Synge, and Lady Gregory, and their use of myth and legend. Selections from various plays will be read and discussed. There will be guest speakers when available. This class will meet Wednesday nights from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., starting June 15. Eight classes will be offered for $25.00.

Mr. Gatch will also instruct a class in Reader's Theatre — covering the selection, arrangement, and presentations of material for performance. Also he will cover the techniques and staging of readings as opposed to the memorized stage script. This will be a participation workshop. Readings will be staged and some acting techniques will be covered. This class will take place on Wednesday nights from 8:15 to 10 p.m. starting on June 15. Eight classes will cost $25.00.

Miles Heberer will conduct a class in Public Speaking. The object of this course is to study and practice speaking skills before audiences. Work in the course includes the preparation and delivery of extemporaneous talks, evaluation of the talks by the instructor and class members, and lectures on speech techniques. Attention will be given to speaking at business and professional meetings as well as performance. This ten-week course, offered on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. starting June 14, will cost $25.00.

If you are interested in drama but do not wish to be involved in production, these classes can give you more background on the various types of theatre and assist you in improving your public speaking.

Cole Weston, as well as other prominent theatre personalities, will offer future classes including a Scene and Character Workshop. To register for these classes, please call the Director's Office at Sunset Center, 624-3996.

Mime troupe to perform Saturday

The Monterey Peninsula College Mime Troupe will perform Saturday, June 4, 11 a.m.-1 p.m., in Devendorf Park. The park is located at Ocean and Junipero Aves., Carmel.

The troup consists of MPC students who are receiving instruction in the art of mime from Don Porter, MPC mime instructor.

The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

URI GELLER, the psychic, will appear at Sunset Center June 10.

Uri Geller at Sunset June 10

Uri Geller, the controversial Israeli psychic, will perform Friday, June 10, 8 p.m., in Sunset Center Theatre. The theatre is located at San Carlos and 9th, Carmel.

Geller is regarded by supporters as the "psychic of the century" and by detractors as many things, the most flattering of which is "clever stage magician."

Among the psychic powers claimed for Geller are the abilities to bend spoons and other implements by willpower alone, to repair watches by mental means and to identify telepathically what someone is drawing in another room.

Geller and his powers have been the subject of scores of experiments by scientists in the United States and Europe, but it has never been conclusively established whether he has genuine psychic ability.

Martin Gardner, a mathematics writer for Scientific American, argues that the Israeli (who was a stage performer in his native country) is "so skillful a magician that only another magician, and not a group of scientists, can determine whether Geller uses trickery or not."

David Davies, editor of the British magazine Nature, in commenting on the magazine's publication of a paper on extrasensory experiments including those with Geller at Stanford Research Institute, said, "In publishing the paper, we are serving notice to the scientific community that there is something here worthy of their scrutiny.

"What we are saying to scientists," he added, "is: Here is what has been done in the name of science. Here are the accusations. Now go back and have another look."

Tickets for the performance are available at the outlets listed in the advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Admission is $9 orchestra, $7.50 for balcony seats. Attendees are urged to bring a spoon and their broken watches.

Parish in one-woman show

Graphics and watercolors are included in the one-woman exhibition of work by Betty Waldo Parish, which will open Monday, June 6, at the Marjorie Evans Gallery, Sunset Center, Carmel. The exhibit will remain on view through June 22.

Miss Parish, who lives and works in New York City, studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Art and the Arts Students League, Julian Academy and New School of Social Research, New York.

Her painting and graphics are in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Library of Congress, Chicago Art Institute, Pennsylvania Museum of Fine Art, British Museum and the Musee d'Art Modern, Brussels. Among her exhibitions she lists shows in Europe, India and South America.

She is a member of the Audubon Artists, Allied Artists of America, National Association of Women Artists, the Pen and Brush Club of New York and the Society of Graphic Artists.

The exhibit at Marjorie Evans Gallery includes 24 graphics and ten watercolors.

ADVERTISMENT

German dishes at Sundial

When German-born Lore Parsons saw a need for a "good German-background restaurant" in Carmel, she proceeded to do something about it. That's how the Sundial Kitchen came into existence almost three years ago.

Serving classic German fare as well as some American favorites, the restaurant offers a cozy, casual atmosphere—sometimes so casual as to encourage friendly "sing-a-longs." Cheerfully decorated in red and white, the dining room seats approximately 30-35 persons. A beamed ceiling, antique pots and pans hanging on the walls, an old-fashioned stove with kettles of steaming soup, and German music playing softly complete the Bavarian setting. During the dinner hours, waitresses add to the restaurant's charm by dressing in Tyrolean dirndl costumes.

Located at 7th and Monte Verde, the Sundial Kitchen is a place where "the customer is king."

"It's very important that they're happy with our food and service," says Lore. "We're off the beaten track, but once people find us, we like to make a friend for life."

Lore Parsons brings with her to the Sundial Kitchen both a desire to provide a good restaurant for Peninsula natives and visitors and the experience to help her and her staff do so. She has worked in the catering field in this area for many years and, while growing up in Germany, was exposed to the restaurant and hotel business through her parents who operated both.

The Sundial Kitchen is open for lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and dinner from 5 to 9:30 p.m. except Saturday, when dinner hours are 5 to 10 p.m. A Sunday brunch is served from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The restaurant is closed Mondays.

The menu features such items as weisse bratwurst (German veal sausage), wienerschnitzel, veal cordon bleu, sauerbraten, prawns in garlic butter, tournedos of beef, and chicken curacao. Salad, fresh vegetables, and homemade spatzle (German noodles) or potato dumplings accompany each entree.

All soups, salad dressings, and desserts served at the Sundial are made on the premises. The "house special" soup is clam chowder and the roquefort dressing is considered unique.

"ROSE" is the appropriately simple title of this oil painting on masonite by Ralph B. Baker, whose works are on exhibit at Atelier Galerie in Del Dono Court, Dolores at 5th, Carmel. The gallery also shows fine limited edition graphics by some of the world's foremost artists.

Flute concert at Korean Temple Friday

An Evening of Shakuhachi will be presented by the Korean Buddhist Temple on Robinson Canyon Rd., Carmel Valley, Friday, June 3, 8 p.m.

Shakuhachi is a special flute made out of thick bamboo; it has an especially haunting sound. Playing this flute evolved as a religious practice of Japanese Zen Buddhist monks.

"One tunes himself to his environment as he blows the flute. The ideal is to attain a timeless quality of eternity with each separate note. Listening to Shakuhachi is supposed to bring the listener back into the creative process 'from silence to sound and back to silence,'" said a spokesman for the Buddhists.

The public is invited to the performance. Although there is no charge for admission, donations will be appreciated.

The Korean Buddhist Temple is at 28110 Robinson Canyon Rd., Carmel Valley. Turn right onto Robinson Canyon Rd. at Farm Center, approximately six miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Rd. Cross the large bridge and a smaller, single-lane bridge. Turn right just across the second bridge. The temple is on the paved road.

Cultural news offered

The Cultural News Service, a Sacramento-based arts information agency funded by the California Arts Council, is currently compiling a list of California artists available for participation in the about-to-be-implemented Art in Public Buildings Act, A.B. 1053. This act, authored by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, provides that part of the State Architect's budget be allocated to the purchase or commissioning of visual art to embellish State buildings.

Forms for artists to register for the program are available at the Director's office, Sunset Center, 8th and San Carlos, Carmel.

Governor Brown's budget request of $700,000 for the program has cleared the initial Senate and Assembly budget review subcommittees, and approval is expected. California Arts Council representatives have stated that among plans for implementation is a large art project for each of the state's five CAC-designated "bio-regions" at an estimated cost of $60,000 per project. There will also be numerous smaller commissions in each bio-region.

Sunset Center has been designated as the CNS information conduit organization in this area. For more information, contact the Director's Office at Sunset Center, 8th and San Carlos, Carmel.

What's playing at the movies

Annie Hall: Woody Allen's new semiautobiographical comedy about a comedian and his rocky romance with an aspiring singer played by Diane Keaton. Rex Reed calls it Allen's best film to date. At Cinema 70.

Audrey Rose: A frightening story of reincarnation in which a little girl's body is taken over by another little girl, unrelated, who died in a car accident years before. Stars John Beck, Marsha Mason and Susan Swift. At the State

Breakout: Charles Bronson is a daring flyer who rescues Robert Duvall from a Mexican prison, a frame-up engineered by his father-in-law, played by John Huston. Jill Ireland is the feminine lead. At the Marina Automovie.

The Car: A mysterious automobile terrorizes a Southwestern town and ruthlessly strikes down several citizens before the sheriff and his men close in on the demonic driver. At the Valley Cinema.

Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry: Peter Fonda and Susan George play members of a gang who are dodging the police in back-country California. Rated PG. At the Marina Automovie.

The Eagle Has Landed: An action-adventure based on the best-selling book by Jack Higgins dramatizes the daring mission of a German paratroop unit sworn to kidnap Britain's wartime prime minister Winston Churchill. Michael Caine and Donald Sutherland star, and Robert Duvall, Jenny Agutter, Jean Marsh, Larry Hagman and Donald Pleasence are featured. Rated PG. At the Marina Automovie.

Family Plot: Alfred Hitchcock's 53rd film stars Bruce Dern, William Devane, Barbara Harris and Karen Black. The suspense master himself plays a cameo role in the screenplay baed on Victor Canning's novel The Rainbird Pattern. The plot is two separate stories which finally mesh together. At the Valley Cinema.

The Godfather: Marlon Brando in his memorable portrayal of the Godfather returns in this re-release of the story of the Mafia. Also stars James Caan, Al Pacino, Robert Duvall, Diane Keaton and Richard Castellano. At the State II.

The Godfather, Part II: More than a sequel to the original, the successor to The Godfather envelops the Carleone family in almost three generations of successive underworld power. Rated PG. At the State II.

The Greatest: Muhammad Ali plays plays himself with his usual flamboyance in the story of his career up to the 1974 fight in Zaire. The film also stars James Earl Jones, Robert Duvall, Ernest Borgnine and John Marley. At the Regency Theatre.

Hard Times: Charles Bronson and James Coburn are barehanded street boxers in the 1933 Depression days in New Orleans. At the Golden Bough.

Lumiere: Jeanne Moreau's debut as writer-director-star in a sensitive story of four women. French with English subtitles. At the Dream Theater.

Mohammad, Messenger of God: A lavish spectacle about the origins of the Moslem religion, encompassing the exile of Mohammad from Mecca and the years of ordeal until his triumphant return. Anthony Quinn stars. At the State

Obsession: A haunting psychological mystery drama starring Cliff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold. A rich New Orleans businessman suffers the trauma of the kidnapping and murder of his wife and daughter. Sixteen years later on a trip to Florence, he meets his wife's exact lookalike in the church were he first fell in love with his wife ... an an eerie chain of events ensues. Rated PG. At the State III.

The Other Side of the Mountain: The true-life love story centering around a desperately injured girl skier whose love of life is equally desperate. Rated PG. At the Village Theatre.

Paint Your Wagon: The big, bawdy musical based on the Broadway hit that revolves around the lives of two gold prospectors: Lee Marvin as the boisterous hard-drinking cynic, and Clint Eastwood as the scholarly, quiet gentleman. At the Hill Theatre.

The Pink Panther Strikes Again: The fourth in the series, with Peter Sellers as Chief Inspector Clouseau and Herbert Lom as Chief Inspector Dreyfus. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Rocky: The powerful, moving story of a simple prizefighter, his shot at the heavyweight title, and his love affair with a shy pet-store clerk. Sylvester Stallone wrote the screenplay and gives an Academy Award-caliber performance as the dumb punk from the Philadelphia slums who trains doggedly for his "chance of a lifetime." Rex Reed calls it "funny and touching and ultimately worthwhile." Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

The Slipper and the Rose: A modern Cinderella story with Richard Chamberlain as the unhappy prince in the kingdom of Eurphrania. Gemma Craven is Cinderella and the late Dame Edith Evans is the Dowager Queen in this musical version of the old fairy tale. At the Hill Theatre.

Slither: James Caan, Peter Boyle, Sally Kellerman and Louise Lasser star in this fast-paced comedy thriller about a bizarre hunt for stolen money through trailer camps along the California coast. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Small Change: An endearing and compassionate film exploring the glories and troubles of childhood. An exceptional cast of non-professionals adroitly directed by Francois Truffaut. In French with English titles. At the Dream Theater.

The Sting: Robert Redford and Paul Newman star in the Academy Award-winning comedy about two con men in the Chicago of the Depression days, preying on the only people with money -- the gangsters. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Tortilla Flat: John Steinbeck's lovable nonconformists come to life on the screen in the 1942 version of the book. Filmed largely on the Monterey Peninsula. With Spencer Tracy, John Garfield, Frank Morgan and -- imagine -- Hedy Lamarr packing sardines on Cannery Row. Fri., Sat. and Sun. only at the Tantamount.

Wizards: Animated full-length futuristic fantasy by Ralph Bekshi, creator of Fritz the Cat. An allegory of good vs. evil, the story takes place 10 million years from now after the world has been devastated by atomic warfare. Two twin brothers, both wizards, head the opposing camps; the powers of magic and goodness finally triumph over the forces of darkness and misused technology. Rated PG. At the 812 Cinema.

Young Frankenstein: Gene Wilder, Peter Boyle, Marty Feldman and Cloris Leachman have the leading roles in Mel Brooks' comedy spoof of monster-horror movies. At the Center Cinemas

Tennis tournament involves everyone

Carmel's First Annual Benefit Tennis Tournament is involving everyone in one way or another. That's what the event's organizers are stressing and that's exactly what they mean.

The tourney is being staged for Carmel's senior citizens as proceeds from the event, which is being presented by Old Carmel, will be used to start a fund to establish a non-profit residential care home in Carmel.

Tennis players of all calibers and just about all ages will be actively involved because they will be providing the show. Junior doubles will be played by boys and girls in four age groups ranging from 11 to 18 years. An adult mixed doubles competition will be staged for persons over 18 with a prize going to the "most senior" mixed doubles team.

Carmel businesses are also an important part of the event. They are helping to promote the competition as is obvious by the many posters being displayed in shop windows around town. They're also providing prizes such as a $250 watch, dinner certificates from restaurants, trophies and wines to name just a few of the more than $1,000 in prizes pledged so far.

"We've had outstanding response from the business community," says Howard Brunn, tournament chairman. "Even people who don't always agree with the concepts of Old Carmel have been very willing to help the tournament."

A final group of people to be involved in the tournament are the spectators who will be able to view the matches, free of charge, on courts at Carmel High, Middle and Woods schools and at Mission Tennis Ranch. The elimination rounds will begin Thursday, June 16, at all courts. Final rounds will be played during the weekend at the tennis ranch courts.

The idea of a tennis tournament for Carmel is the brainchild of Lee Underwood and Howard Brunn, each of whom conceived the idea separately and then, during a conversation one day, realized they were thinking along the same lines. They wanted it to be a benefit tournament and Dr. Don Davidson just happened to have a cause.

The tournament will help to sponsor a non-profit residential care home for "in-between" senior citizens in Carmel who cannot quite exist alone, but are far from the needs of a nursing home.

Davidson is proposing a non-profit residential care home to be located in Carmel for "in-between" seniors who are not quite able to exist alone but are far from the complete dependence of a nursing home. He credits the Carmel Foundation with helping to bridge the gap for senior citizens between complete mental and physical independence and total dependence and emphasizes that his suggestion is not meant to compete with the Foundation's efforts.

"This would be the next step beyond what the Carmel Foundation provides," says Davidson.

The residential care home would be for seniors who are no longer adequately able to care for themselves alone but are still capable of many independent activities and of being a part of the community. Such a facility would "save" these persons from being advanced to a convalescent home, where any independence they still have is taken away, or being sent to a residential care home away from the community they have lived in and know, explains Davidson.

Carmel's benefit tennis tournament will kick off the whole project and, hopefully, make people aware that there is a need for such a facility here.

Old Carmel became involved, according to Brunn, because it wanted to do something for senior citizens.

"Old Carmel has sponsored a lot of activities for young people," he says. "We felt it was time to balance our activities in the other direction."

Not that the organization is turning away from Carmel youth. On the contrary, they see young people as playing a vital role in the tournament and are strongly encouraging their participation, says Brunn.

There is still time for persons to enter the competition before the deadline at 5 p.m. Saturday, June 11. Entry blanks may be obtained from Underwood, who is the tournament director, at Mission Tennis Ranch.

The tournament organizers are still seeking support for the event and, Davidson adds, donations for the residential care home fund itself are also very welcome. Anyone who wants to contribute to either the tournament or the fund should contact Underwood at the tennis ranch, 624-4335.

"This project will take substantial support from the entire community to be successful," Davidson emphasizes.

A TENNIS TOURNAMENT is being held June 16-19 at the Mission Tennis Ranch. Carmel's First Annual Benefit Tennis Tournament will start a fund to establish a non-profit residential care home in Carmel.

California Rodeo tickets on sale

When June arrives, fans know the California Rodeo is just around the corner. Tickets for the 1977 event, Thursday-Sunday, July 14-17 in Salinas, are officially on sale at local outlets.

Ticket prices remain at the 1976 level and range from $3-$5 for adult grandstand seat to $2-$4 for children's grandstand seats; arena seats are $7 for both children and adults. All seats are reserved.

Although good tickets are available for all performances, Saturday and Sunday seats are usually the first to be sold out. Early reservations are suggested.

A bonus this year is special senior citizens' discounts Thursday and Friday, July 14-15; regular $5 center grandstand seats will be $3 for seniors both days.

Tickets may be ordered by mail from California Rodeo, 1034 N. Main St., P.O. Box 164B, Salinas, Calif. 93901. For additional details, phone Salinas 1-424-7355.

HOLIDAY CROWD STATISTICS

If the people who were in Carmel over the holiday this week were placed end to end they would reach from Dubuque, Iowa, to Long Beach, California, and we wish they had.

If the money that they spent in Carmel was all in ten dollar bills, piled in a stack, it wouldn't tower high enough to obscure the sun from an ant. If the dust torn up by flivvers to settle on store counters and parlor furniture was sifted through a screen, it would refill the sewer trench and clog the sewer.

Most Carmel merchants patriotically closed doors at noon on Memorial Day, and let an American flag at the sidewalk's edge stand guard over the premises. Those who remained open had little reward for their labors. The crowd merely window-shopped.

At the theatres, Sunday night was the poorest of the three houses for "The Show Off" though the town was crowded. Movies at the Golden Bough did better, but nothing to brag of. Real estate agents, with rental department, kept busy, but not with much profit. From a general review of business conditions made Tuesday, the holiday crowd was of small use to trade, and otherwise a total loss.

We presume the Pine Cone should be printing an editorial boasting of the attractiveness of the city as shown by the thousands who resort to it for their weekend holiday. We don't. We don't like holiday crowds, don't want holiday crowds, and won't enthuse a darn iota over holiday crowds.

If there were a way to make it impossible for the Saturday-to-Monday, and over-the-holiday picknicker-flivver multitude to be kept out of Carmel, the Pine Cone would be an active partisan for it.

THE ARTIST AND THE PUBLIC

A Carmel grocer was on a committee to give a community celebration for a worthy cause. His suggestion for a sale of paintings to be contributed by the artists met with hearty approval and he was appointed to solicit the paintings. His first interview went something like this:

"Mrs. X, you have always been so generous with your time and talent in helping out community efforts. We want to have a sale of paintings by well-known artists at the coming Fair. May we count on you for a donation?"

Answer: "Yes, Mr. A. I will be happy to contribute a two-hundred dollar picture — on one condition."

Mr. A. (eagerly) "Yes, Mrs. X, what is that condition?"

Mrs. X. (meditatively) "On the condition that you also donate that amount either in cash or groceries."

Mr. A. fainted.

BLACK BARON STRIKES AGAIN

All males, beware, especially those who are balding or graying, when walking in the vicinity of 5th and San Carlos.

If you are not careful, you might be the victim of the high spirited Starling who has made a game out of swooping down upon those who invade his domain, encompassing the entire intersection and half way down to the post office.

The bird (let's call him the "Black Baron" here for the sake of identification) stalks his prey only when they are; (1) male; (2) sporting gray hair; (3) sporting no hair at all; or (4) not looking his way.

The Black Baron is not a dumb bird by any means. If more than one person is walking in his district he remains on his perch high in a pine tree waiting for a more vulnerable prospect. But if a fellow ventures out alone, bald, gray or not, he is open for attack.

The notorious Baron strikes anywhere. His followers seem to think that the "Black Baron" is really "Mrs. Black Baron" with a nest nearby and is merely answering the call of the wild.

Fire danger severe

Parts of Los Padres closed

Effective June 1, 1977 portions of the Los Padres National Forest will be closed to entry and a hazardous fire area has been declared on private lands in southwest Monterey County protected by the California Department of Forestry.

According to Forest Service District Ranger Bob Breazeale a 120-square mile area 10 miles west of King City will be closed to public entry until further notice.

"This area is basically from Arroyo Seco south to the Fort Hunter Liggett boundary and from the eastern edge of the Ventana Wilderness to just past Reliz Canyon on the east. Inside this area a very critical fire hazard exists. This condition has been created by a large buildup of dead plant material resulting from the 1974 freak snowstorm which crushed trees and brush," Breazeale added.

Two other smaller areas on the Forest are also closed — one in the Naciemento Station-Chalk Peak area and the other surrounding the Piney Creek area.

Tom Perkins, Ranger for the San Benito-Monterey Unit, California Department of Forestry expressed concern over hazardous fire conditions in other areas of the county. "Our fire protection managers view the dead vegetation buildup on private lands with concern," Perkins stated. "The resulting conditions brought on by the continued two-year drought is also adding to the seriousness of the situation."

An additional 170,000 acres of private land under the protection of the California Department of Forestry lying north and east of the Los Padres National Forest has been declared a hazardous fire area. Smoking and building fires will be prohibited in areas, except at established campgrounds. Private camping areas at Prince's Camp and Miller's Lodge will be excluded from the hazardous fire area.

The boundary of the hazardous fire area begins at a point along the north boundary of the Los Padres National Forest south of the San Clemente Dam, and then north to Mt. Toro, then south along the Toro Ridge to the Arroyo Seco-Greenfield County Road; then southeast along the foothills south of King City to the Jolon Road; and then south to Robinson Creek area to the eastern boundary of Fort Hunter Liggett. The total area includes a strip approximately 3-7 miles wide north and east of the Los Padres National Forest. The approximate 100-mile boundary will be posted with fire hazard signs.

All areas within the Los Padres National Forest in Monterey County and the private land under California Department of Forestry protection will have increased fire prevention patrols. Fire protection managers state these additional restrictions will remain in effect until fall rains reduce the present hazard.

Similar conditions exist within the Santa Cruz Mountains and a hazardous fire area designation is now in effect there.

All Forest users are encouraged to inquire at the respective fire protection agency for more specific details before entering the affected areas. Maps delineating these areas are available from California Department of Forestry and U.S. Forest Service offices in the area.

Sierra Club plans hikes

The great outdoors beckons members of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club, who welcome members of other chapters or interested nonmembers to hike along.

A hike over the hill to San Juan Bautista along the Old Stage Road is scheduled Saturday, June 4. One-way distance is 5.5 miles, guaranteed to work up an appetite for lunch at one of the fine restaurants in town. A 1½ hour lunch stop affords time to sightsee or relax.

Hikers should meet in the Cinema 70 parking lot, Del Monte Center, Munras Ave., Monterey, at 8:30 a.m. or at the intersection of San Juan Rd. and Crazy Horse Canyon Rd. at 9:30. Bring water and good walking shoes; bag lunches provide an alternative to lunch at a restaurant.

For further information, phone leaders Chet and Bev Gadaire, 375-8995.

Fremont Ballou will again lead one of his popular nature walks through Point Lobos State Reserve Saturday, June 4. Walkers on the leisurely, five-mile stroll will stop frequently to observe land and marine plants and animals, as well as the geology and history of the famous reserve. Binoculars are suggested for viewing animals; those who wish may bring lunch and remain for a short afternoon walk.

The group will be limited to the first 15 who make reservations; phone Ballou, 624-3638.

A moderate, seven-mile hike with a 1,600-foot elevation gain, Sunday, June 5, will go up the ridge on the north side of Carmel Valley above the Village on Holman and Wallace Ranch lands. Recent rains should produce a good display of wildflowers, the leaders advise.

Meet with lunch and water at 8:30 a.m. behind Brinton's, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Carmel Valley Rd. and Highway 1, or at the Bank of America parking area in Carmel Valley Village at 9 a.m. Good hiking boots are recommended.

For details, phone Corky Matthews, 659-2528, or Bill Ricker, 659-2856.

WORKING TO GAIN SKILLS are ROP students in Flanders-Doolittle Park.

Trail blazing through Flanders-Doolittle Park

Students help city

ROP STUDENTS had a hard row to hoe, trail blazing in the park across Rio Road from Carmel Mission.

CHS TRAILBLAZERS Jamie Myrick (forward) and Ingrid Rustin, ROP (Regional Occupational Program) students at Carmel High School, work on a footpath through a portion of the Doolittle property across from Carmel Mission. Working under the direction of the program instructor Richard Willard and city forester Greg D'Ambrosio, students leveled the existing but little-known trail, which will be designated Upper Flanders Trail. According to D'Ambrosio, the trail will be covered with wood chips, tree species signs will be put up and park benches may be placed in the meadow area at the end of the trail.

Dance concert at MPC June 4-5

Modern, Afro-Haitian, jazz and disco dances will be featured in the Monterey Peninsula College's spring dance concert, Saturday and Sunday, June 4-5, 8 p.m., in the MPC Theatre, 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

Gaila Cottrell of the MPC faculty choreographed Pachebel for six woman dancers. She will also solo in a modern jazz dance, accompanied by a piano, flute and drums.

Another faculty member, Dawn Sare, choreographed Street Rituals, a modern dance for 13 performers. Pat Clark and Peri Basseri composed the music for the dance and they will accompany it in the concert.

Admission is $2 general, $1.50 for students.

For more information, phone 373-5522.

Magic Carpet at River School

The Magic Carpet's coming to town! If you remember that enchanted and enchanting group of characters, you'll be tempted to drop everything and plan to attend "The Carpet's" special return engagement at Carmel River School, Saturday, June 4 at noon.

The Magic Carpet, for the uninitiated, is a group of talented young thespians who study together and perform especially for children (and any lucky adults they bring along). The Carpet came into being on the Carmel Valley campus of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars under the inspirational direction of Jim Mairs. For several years, the group worked at Hidden Valley, studying acting, pantomime, voice, diction, dance, body movement and the myriad details of professional theatre.

The fruits of their labors were lavished on local school children, who were entertained, enlightened and enthralled by the novel form of theatre The Magic Carpet performed at schools throughout Monterey County.

Today, the Carpet is based in the San Francisco Bay Area where it continues to work, study and perform for children. The talented group retains the same members who delighted local audiences in past years and continues to improvise, invent and inspire wherever it goes.

The performance at River School is co-sponsored by the Carmel Unified School District Recreation Dept. and the River School Parents' Club.

Everyone is invited. Bring a picnic lunch, the entire family and friends. Meet on the grassy lower playfield of River School, 15th Ave. and Monte Verde, Carmel at noon. There is no charge for admission.

For further information, phone River School, 624-4609.

Play Festival June 3

The Children's Experimental Theatre of Carmel will present its annual Festival of Plays at the Forest-Theater-in-the-Ground beginning Friday, June 3. The Festival is presented each June as the CET's "gift to the community." Everyone is welcome to attend; there is no charge for admission.

With the exception of The Trojan Women by Euripides, the plays are original scripts written by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, founder/director of CET. The acting school for young people is now in its 16th year. Student actors ranging in age from eight to 18 will perform.

Dates, times and play titles are as follows:

Saturday, June 4: The Three Sillies, 9:30 a.m.; The Golden Goose, 10:30 a.m.; Street of the Somersaults, 11:30 a.m.; To Your Good Health, 1:30 p.m.; Hall of Women, 3 p.m.; The Great Fear, 8 p.m.

Sunday, June 5: The Three Sillies, 12 noon; To Your Good Health, 1 p.m.; Street of the Somersaults, 2 p.m.; The Golden Goose, 3 p.m.; Hall of Women, 4 p.m.; The Geat Fear, 8 p.m.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, June 6-8, and Friday, June 10, The Trojan Women by Euripides, 8 p.m.

On Saturday, June 11, the June 4 program repeats except that Hall of Women will be staged at 8 p.m. Sunday, June 12, repeats the June 5 program.

The Forest Theater-in-the-Ground is beneath the outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. For additional information, phone 624-1531.

Consultant Bee Epstein

Time is living, not organizing

By IRENE GAASCH

Time management has nothing to do with organizing your day and everything to do with living your life, according to Human Relations and Management consultant Bee Epstein.

"Too many people think in terms of time management when they should be thinking in terms of using their time more effectively," she says. Bee finds people gear their lives to a schedule. She notes, "A schedule is arbitrary. You should gear your schedule to your life — to the way you want to live."

Bee teaches people how to use their time more effectively. To do this, she has designed exercises or strategies which help people become aware of how they are using their time and why.

One of the strategies Bee uses is to have people make schedules of their day to observe how they use their time. "After observing how the time is used, a person can decide what is wise use of time and what is wasted," Bee explains.

Yet how a person uses time is only one part of it. Why a person is using time in a certain way is equally important in Bee's opinion. The first step she takes in any of her workshops is to have the people define their goals — or what they want from life.

She asks people to list life time goals, short range goals for the next three to five years and immediate goals. "I ask people what they would do if they had only six months to live," says Bee, indicating this often reveals startling facts about time use to most people.

"We should live our lives with the idea that life is limited. That there is only a certain amount of time and time is the only thing that cannot be replaced," Bee says. She feels she teaches people to use their time with reverence — to enjoy it but to use it wisely. The only way to use time in this way is to know what you want from your life, Bee explains.

Learning what you want from life comes from establishing your goals, she says. Bee finds that most people go through daily activities without any goals in mind. Once these goals are listed, Bee has people look at what they did yesterday and evaluate their activities in terms of the goals they listed.

Never say I don't have the time.
Say, I don't choose to use my time that way.

"Generally I find that less than ten percent of the time people use is actually goal oriented," Bee notes. This means that people are not living the way they want to at all, she says. Through exercises, Bee has people think about what they are doing, focusing on what activities that could be done to help achieve the goals the person listed.

By the third session of the month-long workshop, Bee has people define those activities necessary to reach their goals. "What I have done is to let people see exactly what they are doing with their time and to think of ways to eliminate needless activities," Bee says.

To eliminate needless activities, Bee has people define why they do certain things.

CONSULTANT Bee Epstein teaches people to use their time effectively in month-long workshops which give strategies for using time and planning goals. Her next workshop will be in July.

"A lot of people will say, 'I have to do this,' or 'it has to get done.' I will come back with, 'why does it have to get done?' One woman answered, 'If I don't do it, it won't get done.' To which I replied, 'If nobody else will do it, then it's not important enough for you to waste your time on.' That really stunned her. All she could do was look at me," Bee says.

"What I like to do is to make people see that just because you've done something a certain way, and it is traditional to do it that way, does not mean it is right. The most destructive thing I can imagine hearing is 'this is the way we've always done it.' That statement closes the door to all creative thinking," contends Bee.

Tradition plays a small part in guiding activities at the Epstein home. The family slogan is, "Don't push the river." Bee explains that this means nothing is forced in their home. "If it's right, it will happen," says Bee, noting that she and her husband Len share the responsibilities of their home and their three children with each one doing what has to be done — regardless of who should traditionally do it. In addition to workshops and consulting jobs, Bee teaches at Monterey Peninsula College as does Len. "Neither of us has full responsibility for the house or the children and we balance our activities as best we can," says Bee. She explains that this is easy for them because they make decisions in terms of their goals and they are both aware of each others goals.

In fact, Bee feels the best part of knowing ones goals is that it allows "almost instant" decisions. "When goals are known," she explains, "you can evaluate an activity in terms of them." This can be done by asking yourself if the activity fits in with any of the goals. "If it does, do it," says Bee. If not, ask if it is an activity that could be called a concession. "A concession activity is one which is done in terms of the other people in your life," explains Bee.

It is her feeling that we all owe something to mankind and to the earth and that our existence on earth must be justified. "In addition to working toward our own goals, we must realize that life is give and take, and if we take we are responsible to give," she says, adding that she feels concessions are a way of fulfilling this obligation.

After a person learns to plan and evaluate life through goals, then he must give some time to balancing activities within the time.

"Most people don't think this way," says Bee, noting that contrary to what is thought, such planning does not take the spontaneity out of life. "Planning leaves you free to live now," she says, "and now is all you have."

All the time you have is 24 hours a day — there won't be any more time later.

Nothing makes Bee sadder than hearing someone say they are going to do something later, when they have more time. "There won't be any more time later. All there is, is 24 hours a day and it will not be different later," she says. That is why she feels if there is something you want to do, make plans to have it happen.

She also advises people to not use the expression, "I don't have the time." She says, "You do have the time. If you don't want to do something, say 'I choose not to use my time this way'."

"This statement also makes you claim the responsibility for your decision," says Bee. "Speaking in this manner may not make you popular," she says, "but, you cannot be concerned with what other people will think of you for not baking that cake or serving on that committee." She admits that learning to not rely on other people's opinions is difficult and to do it a person needs to have self confidence.

"One way to achieve this confidence, is to define your goals and live your life in terms of them," says Bee. She notes that goals are flexible. Once you write them down, you are not committed to them. "In fact, writing them down may bring changes," she adds. She views change as an opportunity — "change allows creative solutions if we let it," she notes.

"Setting goals and using time effectively won't eliminate mistakes," says Bee. "It is not a way of finding all the right answers," she notes. What this will do is show why and how you make your decisions. It gives you a method to control your own time — a way to be responsible and considerate. She smiles, adding, "It's simple — and I'm proof, it works."

AFS student Bob Grant

Prepares for hot summer

By BARBARA CAMERA

While most high school students are lining up summer jobs and planning all kinds of warm weather activities, Bob Grant is preparing for the coming months in other ways.

He is busily studying an unusual foreign language and reading all he can find about a certain island-chain country stretching along the equator. He is also obtaining a passport and visa and undergoing the inevitable shots that go hand in hand with overseas travel. Bob has been selected by the American Field Service (AFS) to spend two months half way around the world in Indonesia. While there, he will live with an Indonesian family and attend a local school. And, without a doubt, he will experience firsthand another people's way of life.

"I hope to broaden my horizons this summer, says the Carmel High School junior. "I think this opportunity will give me a better perspective of the world. Right now, I view everything from an American standpoint and by American values because that's all I know."

BOB GRANT and his mother Mrs. Stephen Grant look over the application of the Indonesian family that will host Bob during his summer abroad as part of the AFS program. Family pet, Susie, always wants to be part of the action.

One of two CHS students chosen to participate in the AFS program this year, Bob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Grant. His father was mayor of Carmel from 1966 to 1968 and served on the city council two years prior to that.

The other local AFS'er, Kathy Coakley, departed in February for Brazil as part of the school year abroad program.

Although Bob has been interested in AFS since his freshman year, he didn't apply until his junior year. His application was one of two forwarded from the high school to AFS headquarters in New York and, "from there, it was a matter of being matched up with an applicant family abroad.

"After I got over the shock of being chosen," Bob says, "I was very happy about my selection."

He is especially pleased with the Indonesian family selected to be his AFS "family." Bob, who has an interest in veterinary science, will have an AFS "father" who is a veterinarian working with the government. In addition to his new "mother," his family will consist of five siblings. This in itself will be something different for Bob as he is the last of three brothers living at home.

One brother, Pat Grant, is a sophomore at Western Washington State College majoring in urban and regional planning. He will be home for the summer and working with AMBAG. Bob's oldest brother, John Hackbarth, is a forester working for the Bureau of Land Management in Oregon.

This will be Bob's first trip outside the United States although last summer he did travel extensively within the country. As part of the Bicentennial celebration, he pedaled his way across the nation in an 82-day bicycle ride. According to their application, Bob's host family also enjoys bicycling.

Indonesia will offer quite a change from last summer's adventure, though. Located between southeast Asia and Australia, the country consists of several large islands and more than 13,000 smaller ones. Its 130 million people depend largely on agriculture, fishing and forestry for their livelihood. Islam is the predominant religion. Average temperature is 80 degrees Fahrenheit and its seasons are often described as wet and less wet.

Bob, who will depart June 24, says he isn't anticipating too many problems in his coming trip. AFS has been holding county-wide meetings for participants to cover the general aspects of going abroad and to help the students prepare for situations that might arise. In addition, the 27 students from all over the U.S. who are headed for Indonesia will receive an orientation before leaving the States and again when they arrive in Djarkata, Indonesia's capital. From there, Bob will be traveling to Semarang on the island of Java where he will join his new family.

"The language difference is one aspect that worries me a little," Bob says. "I picture my 'mother' telling me to do something, and I won't have any idea what she's saying."

Mrs. Grant notes, with a laugh, that this is nothing particularly new for mothers.

Actually, Bob's Indonesian father does speak some English, but he is the only one in the family to do so. As part of his advance preparation, Bob has obtained some instructional materials on the Indonesian language from the Defense Language Institute.

A possible problem with the change in diet has also crossed Bob's mind. However, his doctor gave him some very practical advice.

"He told me to take along a bottle of Pepto-Bismol and not worry about it," Bob

TIDE POOL WALK

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will conduct a tide pool field trip Saturday, June 4, at Point Pinos. Interested members and friends of Audubon should meet at 7 a.m. at the parking lot across from Crespi Pond near Ocean View Blvd. and Asilomar Blvd. in Pacific Grove.

Warm, washable clothing and sneakers or hip boots are recommended. A small hand lens would be helpful in observing invertebrates.

FIRST AID CLASSES

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Red Cross Chapter is offering a series of first aid classes this month to provide safety information and training. The schedule is as follows:

Standard First Aid and Personal Safety, Monday and Wednesday, June 6-27, 4-7 p.m.

Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care, Tuesday and Thursday, June 7-July 21, 7-9 p.m.

CPR-BLS (cardio-pulmonary resusciation and basic life support), Monday, June 6-Wednesday, June 8, 7-10:30 p.m.

All classes will be held in the Carmel Chapter House, Dolores and Eighth. For more information call the chapter office at 624-6921.

TAX ASSISTANCE

A state representative will be in Monterey Tuesday-Thursday, June 7-9, to help elderly homeowners and renters with their Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance or Senior Citizens Rent Assistance claims. A temporary office will be open at the Monterey Youth Center, 777 Pearl St., from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Senior citizens who plan to take advantage of the free assistance should bring with them the forms received in the mail as well as pertinent records such as their 1976-77 property tax bill (if applicable), income records, proof of age and social security number.

WEDNESDAY PROGRAM

"Haiti — Its Customs, People and Problems" will be the topic of the Carmel Foundation's Wednesday afternoon program on June 8 at Diment Hall. Rolande Tournier, a DLI instructor in French, will present the slide-talk on her native country. A tea provided by Pi Beta Phi alumnae will follow the program at 2:30 p.m.

RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Carmel Chapter House Thursday, June 9, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Lunch will be served to donors at no charge and free transportation will be available by calling the chapter at 624-6921 prior to or the morning of June 9.

Once upon a time...

by Frank Lloyd

Cast in the character of always looking backward into a past that seemed more rosy than it actually was, this column tries at times to come up with the present, giving some note to what those who peopled the long ago are still doing, or, if they are not with us yet, at least their friends or descendents. But the past has its magnetism and its stories.

Perhaps the Carmel Pine Cone had more impact upon my life for years than I was ever aware before, but recalling the time that our family was away from Carmel, after having first discovered this wonderful place of pines and oaks and chaparral by the sea, it was the Pine Cone that kept our affection warm, mainly with trivial details.

The little weekly kept us up with personages who trod the Carmel streets; so much so, in fact, that the first time we drove back into Carmel as our own little family with a tiny daughter, Jennefer, my wife, Marjory, pointed out a man in leather leggins, crisp clothing, bareheaded and said, "That's Bert Heron."

And it was Herbert Heron! And if, looking over the history of Carmel-by-the-Sea, there was one man who stood out as a shaper of the community, it would have to be Herbert Heron, founder of the Forest Theater, builder of the Seven Arts building, and finally mayor of our small city. He was also a poet and left a family active today in our business community and now into a fourth generation of little Carmelites.

Of all the institutions, however, that have made Carmel, it still has to be the Pine Cone, Bill Overstreet's foundling, which survived while other hopeful weeklies were born and usually never even grew up in our small town. Other founders of these weeklies were perhaps more talented than Overstreet; more forceful, more brilliant, and immediately Willard K. Bassett leaps to mind. He fired up the Cymbal and blasted weekly the nonsense he found here. And there was S.A.R., Steve Reynolds, who had a bright and erratic journal.

Overstreet carried on a somewhat middle-of-the-road type of journalism and, of necessity, it had to be a breadwinner. That frequently tempers the flare of the crusader in all of us. He ran a one-man show for a long time and his old friend from the San Francisco-Oakland literary and political scene, Perry Newberry, kept nagging at him for a piece of the action.

For years Overstreet would not share. Until one day, he let Newberry in, and that began a brighter and more spectacular period for Carmel journalism. Newberry could not leave Carmel politics alone. Finally he ran on a keep-the-tourists-out campaign to set up gates and a fence at Carmel's boundaries and let Carmel retain its ambience, its childhood fantasy as a writer's and artist's colony, a place where professors could bring their families, where poetry and science could sit down together under a protective pine. All this while the mad, mad world whirled by on the outside, crassly and smugly touting Progress with a great big letter "P."

Hal Garrott, a successful businessman with a fine touch for living and enjoyment of the arts, finally came to share with Newberry the pages of the Pine Cone. Meanwhile Overstreet had left his old love, the slapping flat bed press, the rattling linetype, the smell of printer's ink and the solvent used to clean the type, the bustle of printing and mailing day.

The Pine Cone had moved from its birthplace on Ocean Avenue to Dolores Street, where it remained for well over 40 years in various locations, in the very building Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous founded their career in Carmel music with the Bach Festival their child.

Came a day in the 30's when once again it was time for change. The James L. Cockburn family of Hawaii, recently come over to make their home here, bought the paper and Perry Newberry passed on the torch he had received from the hands of the founder, Bill Overstreet. The Great Depression was easing up and Franklin Delano Roosevelt was in the White House; and there arrived on the national scene the precursors of our current flood of acronyms: NRA and WPA, the best known and most pervasive in our lives just then.

For my own part in this drama, after walking out on the career I had carved on the Montreal Gazette (we called ourselves the New York Times of Canada) and then with short stints in newspaper work which I was still trying to avoid, I came back to Carmel and found myself beseiged by the Cockburns, father and son, and Perry Newberry. Apparently a year of columns I had written for Bassett's fiery Cymbal had been my entre.

The wages were pitiful and I said so, but the offer was immediate and with a family to feed while I looked around for opportunities in my chosen homeplace, a choice going back to a childhood or wandering back and forth across the country, the deal was closed. With Marj also sharing in the Pine Cone, in which she was trained by me, and thus making the slim wages just enough to warrant the type of work I was still trying to leave, we were backed by the Cockburns in considerable changes in the manner of presentation, making a magazine look more like a newspaper.

The conference at which this writer was hired was something out of "The Front Page," or old San Francisco. The scene was Perry Newberry's home in the north end of Carmel, a place he faced with pieces of old bricks, known also as brickbats or Irish confetti, and the last of the many Newberry houses. Perry's second wife, Ida, or Barbara as she preferred to be called by intimates, was in the background. On the table, much to my surprise and in keeping with Newberry's other days and the Scottish Cockburns' predeliction, was a bottle of whisky. Maybe they had cigars, too — but what a waste, I thought, and also how touching. Booze or a million dollars, I was not for sale.

Later, on Dolores Street, there was some of the now old trouble: parking. Each of the few working days of the week, usually from Monday noon to Thursday late, my old model A Ford van would sit across the street until the business people there revolted. Little did they know that it was the very van John Steinbeck had bought from the Tevins brothers for his Grapes of Wrath story gathering.

And now, TODAY, the Pine Cone moves itself away from Dolores Street!

Refreshing Greek foods

When my friend Jerry Williamson left for Greece on a vacation recently I asked if he would send us some recipes since he is quite a connoisseur. So without further adieu, here are some delights. Greece has lived up to Epicurus and the gourmet fare that pre-Christian philosopher's name symbolizes. Near the crossroads of the Middle East, Greece was heir to pungent spices and herbs now used universally. What could be more delicious than mounds of olives, tomatoes, eggplant, melons, huge purple grapes and magnificent native cheeses (feta) with crusty Greek bread and sweet butter.

Can you imagine a patron in a French restaurant advising the chef on how to cook the meal? Yet, a Greek considers he has a right to direct the culinary procedures in his favorite taverna.

Jerry says he found that our pre-dining ritual, the cocktail hour, was invented by early Greeks. "Provocatives to drinking" is how they call their appetizers or meze to go with ouza which is taken a thimbleful at a time because of the strength of this homemade anise-flavored aperitif. In Greece, a meal without wine is unthinkable — as it is beginning to be with us. All meals end with beautiful fresh fruits picked in the early morning dew wrapped in grape leaves and kept cool in the shade. Often the fruit is served with yoghurt. A delightful method, and one we should all adopt.

One of the top ranking military wives in Athens with the U.S.A. group there gave ever popular buffet suppers starting with a brimming tureen of hot fresh lemon flavored chicken soup called soupa avgolemono. So refreshing after the ouzo. Soupa Avgolemono: Lemons are large size with a sweet tang. They are used often in everyday cuisine of Greece. First boil chicken parts (here we expedite with canned chicken and rice soup). Then heat gradually adding two fresh eggs and fresh lemon juice to taste (with a sparse addition of fresh orange juice to resemble the Greeks who had a word for it: "out of this world") Simmer until serving time, being careful not to overheat, or it will curdle.

To go with this delicate soupa for a ladies' luncheon party you could either have the standard Moussaka or a more simple idea which Jerry favors: Stuffed Peppers and Tomatoes. For six servings, cut tops off six large green bell peppers, remove membranes and seeds. Do the same with six large firm tomatoes. Save the tops of both vegetables. Carefully scoop out insides being careful not to pierce skins. Put two lbs. ground beef (although lamb is used in Near Eastern countries) in skillet with two large chopped onions cooking gently until done. Add some butter or olive oil, salt and pepper, minced fresh parsley. Arrange peppers and tomatoes in casserole. Sprinkle a bit of salt and sugar in each tomato. Add salt only in each pepper. Fill both with a bought bread stuffing, moistened with olive oil. Cover each with its own top hat. These can be made a day ahead, refrigerated then heated in 400 F. oven for ten minutes; lower heat to 375 F. and cook until vegetables are tender and golden brown (about 75 minutes).

Today there is quite an American colony in Greece who like to share their bounty with even strangers. Jerry, however, stayed with friends from Carmel.

explains. "Besides, I've heard some very good comments about Indonesian food and I'm anxious to give it a try."

When a person has been chosen for an opportunity such as this one, it's sometimes hard to know ahead of time exactly what to expect and what will be gained from the experience. That will be another story when Bob returns to Carmel at the end of the summer.

Both Bob and his AFS father agree on the reason for participating in the program, though. On his application to host a student, Bob's Indonesian father answered the question "Why are you applying for an AFS student?" as follows: "For better international relationships and better understanding."

"I think that really says it," agrees Bob wholeheartedly.

SCOTTS CELEBRATE 50TH

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Scott will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary on Thursday, June 9. Their children, John, Frank Jr. and Michael Scott and Donna Allison, will be traveling to Carmel from various parts of the country to join in the golden celebration.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Scott attended Purdue University. They were married in Indiana in 1927. Ten years and two children later they moved to Minnesota where Dr. Scott earned his Ph.D. in metallurgy from the University of Minnesota. He was also an instructor at the school.

The Scotts moved to Carmel in 1971, following Dr. Scott's retirement, after 25 years in management with the Marquette Manufacturing Co. in Minneapolis.

The Scotts have eight grandchildren and recently welcomed the arrival of their first great-grandchild.

CREGO IS LIFE SCOUT

Van Crego, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Crego, has been advanced to Life Scout in Carmel's Troop 3. The Middle School student has earned a total of 19 merit badges and has earned all of the 12 skill awards available to Scouts. He has attended White Stag and Troop Leadership Development and is patrol leader of the Beaver Patrol, Troop 3.

Van is one of 30 Scouts from the Monterey Bay Area Council planning to attend the 1977 National Scout Jamboree to be held at Moraine State Park, PA, in August.

Other Troop 3 news

In other Troop 3 news, nine Scouts spent part of a recent weekend working at Garland Ranch Regional Park in Carmel Valley. They worked on a Community Service Project which took three hours and involved the construction of a portion of a hiker's trail and clearing vegetation for another.

Participating Scouts were Carl Still, Daniel Hu, Bradley Hanzelka, Devon Gilmore, Rick Han, Steve Stripling, Matt Heimbold, Darren Bellati and Shawn O'Neil.

SNYDER HEADS CARMEL POST NO. 512

Walt Snyder has been elected commander of American Legion Post No. 512 in Carmel. He succeeds Lee Edelen in the top elective position. Other officers elected at a recent meeting were: Bob Stites, first vice commander; Bill Fielo, second vice commander; Pat O'Malley, adjutant; and Lou Barabe, Frank Crow, Fred Foley, Peggy Graffoliere and Ted Melicia, executive committee members.

CHS HONOR STUDENTS

Barbara Bell was named outstanding student for 1976-77 during an Academic Excellence Celebration held at Carmel High School last week to honor 81 members of the California Scholarship Federation. CSF sealbearers were Claudine Arnal, Barbara Bell, Richard Bell, Carol Ann Davis, Leslie Dunton, Carolyn Drye, Nancy Fleming, Bill Gaver, Craig Hill, Mary Lor, Marguerite Meyer, Kathy Rogers, Jim Ryan, Lisa Schoening and Jenny Walden.

Other students honored were: Wendy Angel, Rebecca Barrish, Andrew Beckett, Don Berta, Alex Blevens, Pam Clemens, Beth Copsey, Lisa Crisan, Elizabeth Drye, Robert Dunn, Lynn Fenton, Arlene Ferrill, Gwen Fishkoff, Gail Frost, Erin Gafill, Kirstin Gafill, Mike Galang, Don Gaver, Bob Grant, Sandy Harrison, Steven Heinz, Bryan Hogan, Jim Irwin, Eve Jacklin, Karen Kabat, Angela Karadsheh, Barbara Keller, Patrick Kelly, Peter Kelly, Brenda Lambert, Theresa Lee, Natash Lewis, Diane Long, David Long, Jennifer MacLennan, David Marcus, Kristina Miller, Patricia Miller, Sean Moore, Kevin Nix, Greg O'Hara, Chris Paik, John Pollard, Nancy Pryer, Jill Ricketts, Bari Roberts, Betty Rogers, Michael Ross, Marion Ruiz, Donna Ryu, Gretchen Siegrist, Holly Simpson, Josh Simpson, Art Strum, Laura Steinmetz, Albert Tao, Kamella Tate, Melody Tate, Terry Thomas, Sinclair Thomson, Gayle Uyeda, Suzy Vineberg, Kim VonBerg, Lisa Watson, Diane Wilsdon, Scott Wilsdon, Richard Wright, and Belle Yang.

PUCCI ON DEAN'S LIST

Steven L. Pucci, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Pucci of Pebble Beach, has been named to the Dean's List at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, CA. Pucci is a sophomore at the school which is the engineering and physical sciences college of the six Claremont Colleges.

PATRICK GRANT RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP

Patrick Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Grant, has been awarded a Patrick L. Monahan Memorial Scholarship for the 1977-78 academic year. These scholarships are awarded annually to students demonstrating academic potential and promising performances in geography. Grant is a sophomore in urban and regional planning. His younger brother, Bob, has been selected by the American Field Service (AFS) to spend the summer in Indonesia.

TORRAS NAMED TO BOARD

Carmel native Vince Torras, owner-president of Wermuth Storage Company, Inc., in Monterey, has been elected to the California Moving and Storage Association's Board of Directors. The association represents over 600 local and long distance moving companies in the state in areas of legislation, public relations and consumer affairs.

Torras was installed during the association's 59th annual convention held in San Diego.

BARBARA LIMBER DENTAL ASSISTANT GRADUATE

Barbara Lee Limber received a certificate of achievement during graduation ceremonies held recently for MPC's dental assistants graduates. While participating in the college's dental assisting program, Miss Limber gained practical experience through a supervised clinical experience program at Fort Ord and in the offices of local dentists.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons having any interest in the matters, that the Board of Adjustments of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, will conduct Public Hearings in the Council Chambers of said City on Wednesday, June 15, 1977 at the hour of 4:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as interested persons may be heard, to consider the following:

B.A. 77-26
USE PERMIT
G.J. Kontzle
N-E Corner Mission & 7th
Block 78, Carmel Plaza Mini Mall
Consideration of an application for a use permit to allow a food service establishment. The applicant desires to amend the existing use permit established by Resolution No. 76-33 as issued to Mr. John Van Noord to allow for a delicatessen to be placed in the gift shop area and to also allow for the sale of wine with an offsale wine license. Said application being considered under Sections 1308.2 (g) and 1341.3 (a) of the Carmel Municipal Code.

AND

B.A. 77-27
USE PERMIT
Gary Amerigian
N-s 7th Avenue between Dolores & San Carlos
Block 76, Easterly 25 feet of Lots 20 & 22
Consideration of an application for a use permit to allow a new food service establishment. Applicant desires to remodel and convert two existing dwelling units into a food service establishment and to construct new deck areas to provide for outside dining. The facility would allow for a capacity of 70 persons with seating outdoors for 54 persons and indoor for 16. Application being considered under Sections 1306.2 (m) and 1341.3 (a) of the Carmel Municipal Code.

AND

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Director of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California has reviewed the following project and found that it will have no significant effect upon the environment:

PROJECT:
B.A. 77-28
USE PERMIT
Gary Amerigian (Off the Beat'n Path)
N-s 7th Street between Dolores & San Carlos
Block 76, East 25 feet Lots 20 & 22
The project proposes to convert two apartments to commercial use and allow for primarily an outdoor restaurant use.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT:
An assessment of the project was made on the basis of an environmental questionnaire submitted by the applicants Architect. The review was made in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970 as amended, being regulations in the California Administrative Code, Title 14, Division 6, Sections 15000 through 15167 and in accordance with the Carmel Municipal Code, Part X, Division 2, Sections 1323.00 through 1323.24. The review indicates the project will not have a significant effect on the environment.

REASONS FOR SUPPORTING FINDINGS:
The project proposes to change the use of the existing structures from residential to commercial use. The property is presently surrounded by commercial use and is located in the C-1-C Zone. The project has two adverse effects: (1) Two existing rental apartments will be removed from the housing stock. (2) Parking and traffic circulation problems will be increased slightly due to an increase in use and employees on the property. The applicant has stated that the use of water would be limited with the operation as the luncheons will be primarily sandwiches served in baskets with napkins. Though restaurant use will have some adverse impacts there will be no significant effect upon the environment.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that said determination will be final and conclusive ten (10) days after publication of this notice unless an appeal from said determination is taken within said period in the manner provided by Section 1323.23 of Article 2A of Part X of the Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.

Audubon sets low tide walk

A low-tide walk at Point Pinos on the tip of Pacific Grove is planned by the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society; all interested persons are welcome. Meet in the parking lot on Ocean View Blvd. at Asilomar Blvd., Pacific Grove, at 7 a.m., Saturday, June 4. Wear warm, washable clothing, tennis shoes or hip boots. Participants should bring a hand lens if possible. Outing leaders are Betty Nybakken and Marilyn Vassallo. For further information, phone Joy Osborne, 375-2145.

The chapter's general meeting is scheduled Thursday, June 9, 7:30 p.m., in the Canterbury Woods Auditorium, 651 Sinex Ave., Pacific Grove.

The Salton Sea: The Birth and Death of an Accidental Desert Salt Lake, will be the topic of an illustrated lecture to be presented by Dr. Larry Oglesby, head of the Pomona College Department of Biology.

According to Dr. Oglesby, the Salton Sea was formed in 1906 when water from the Colorado River broke out of the Alamo Canal. The water was intended for irrigation in the Coachella and Imperial valleys.

All interested persons are welcome to the meeting. For further information on the local Audubon Society and its activities, phone president Betty Hughes, 375-4860.

Fire Chief wants microwave oven

If Chief Robert Updike has his way, the Carmel Fire Department will no longer be cooking with gas.

At last Tuesday night's special budget meeting of the city council, Chief Updike requested funds for a microwave oven.

Chief Updike said when his men go off in a hurry they sometimes forget to turn off the burners. A microwave oven, the Chief explained, would shut itself off.

"This way we won't have to worry about coming back from a fire and finding the station up in smoke," said Updike.

Red Cross offers classes

The Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Monterey County chapters of the Red Cross are offering a series of first aid courses in June designed to provide safety information and training to all participants.

Standard First Aid and Personal Safety: every Monday and Wednesday, June 6 through June 27, 4-6 p.m., Carmel Chapter House, 8th and Dolores. No prerequisite. Parking available in back.

Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care: every Tuesday and Thursday, June 7 through July 21, 7-9 p.m. Carmel Chapter House. No prerequisite.

CPR-BLS (Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation and Basic Life Support): Monday, June 6—Wednesday, June 8, 7-10:30 p.m. Carmel Chapter House.

Community Note

BABY SITTING COURSE

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula is offering a Red Cross Baby Sitting Certification Course for teens starting Tuesday, June 7, at the Seaside Library. The class will meet from 3:30-5:30 p.m. each Tuesday for five weeks. Upon completion participants will be placed on the YWCA babysitting switchboard for job referrals. For additional information and to register call the YWCA at 649-0834.

Obituaries

ANDREASEN

Anna Andreasen, 67, of Carmel was found dead May 29 at her Dolores and 4th Avenue home. Neighbors reported she had not been seen lately, and an investigation by the coroner's office found she had been dead for some time.

She was also known as an artist and dancer by the name of Anna Lisa. In 1954 she won an award for an oil painting entered in an exhibition in the Birmingham Museum of Art. She had appeared as a dancer in the Earl Carroll Vanities and the George White Scandals and with the Shuberts of Broadway and the Billy Rose Aquacade.

She lived on the Peninsula since 1950.

ESHOM

Edna Eshom, of Pebble Beach, a Monterey Peninsula resident for 21 years, died May 27 at Fort Ord's Silas B. Hays Hospital. She is survived by her husband Rear Adm. Clifford Eshom.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 77-15

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ARTICLE 1 AND 7 OF DIVISION 1 OF PART IV OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA RESTRICTING THE USE OF CERTAIN STREETS FOR TOUR BUSES AND ESTABLISHING CERTAIN AREAS FOR LOADING AND UNLOADING.

WHEREAS, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea enacted Ordinance No. 77-14 regulating the travel and parking of tour buses within the city on March 21, 1977; and

WHEREAS, the facts recited in the preamble to that ordinance remain true; and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has found it imperative to make certain amendments to that ordinance; and

WHEREAS, the heavy tour bus traffic in the city has commenced; and

WHEREAS, it is necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the city for this ordinance to be enacted immediately;

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ordain as follows:

Section 1. Part IV, Division 1, Article 1 of the Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is hereby amended by modifying Section 500.13 to read as follows:

500.13 Tour Bus. A tour bus shall mean any bus or other commercial vehicle operated for hire to transport sightseers or tourists wherever licensed exceeding a maximum gross weight limit of three (3) tons and used primarily for transport of passengers for compensation. It shall not include school buses or buses transporting passengers over regular routes within Carmel-by-the-Sea where the routes are specifically designated by the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) or approved by the city.

Section 2. Part IV, Division 1, Article 7 of the Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is hereby amended by amending Section 538.3 to read as follows:

538.3 Tour Buses.

(a) Ingress and Egress. Tour buses shall use only the following streets, in a north to south direction only, for ingress and egress of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea:

(1) Carpenter Street between the northerly city limit and 2nd Avenue.

(2) 2nd Avenue between Carpenter Street and Santa Fee Street.

(3) Santa Fe Street between 2nd and 3rd Avenues.

(4) 3rd Avenue between Santa Fe Street and Junipero Avenue.

(5) Junipero Avenue between 3rd Avenue and 8th Avenue.

(6) 8th Avenue between Junipero Avenue and San Carlos Street.

(7) San Carlos Street between 8th Avenue and 13th Avenue.

(8) 13th Avenue between San Carlos Street and Rio Road.

(9) Rio Road between 13th Avenue and the southerly city limit.

(10) Santa Lucia bounded on the west by Scenic Road and Rio Road on the east.

(11) Scenic Road bounded on the north by Santa Lucia Avenue and the city limits on the south.

(b) Tour Buses in Residential Districts: Tour buses shall be prohibited from using any streets in the residential district except those described in Section 538.3(a) hereof with the following exceptions:

(1) Emergencies.

(2) For the purpose of loading and unloading passengers at hotels and motels where the passengers are to stay overnight in the city, tour buses shall be allowed to use the most direct streets between the Commercial District and the lodging place of the passengers.

(3) Transporting passengers to or from specific restaurants within the city where arrangements for dining have been made in advance of arrival.

(4) Transporting passengers to or from specific cultural or entertainment events within the city.

(5) Transporting local persons from and back to the city for any purpose.

(c) Tour Buses Permitted in Commercial District: Tour buses shall be prohibited from using any streets within the commercial district except those described in Section 538.3(a) hereof with the exceptions stated in Section 538.3(b) above.

(d) Parking and Stopping or Standing: It shall be unlawful for tour buses to park or stop or stand, except for emergencies or traffic laws or conditions, anywhere in the city other than in the following areas:

(1) The west side of Junipero Street between Ocean and 7th Avenues beginning south of the Carmel Plaza loading zone and extending immediately south to 7th Avenue;

(2) Places where passengers have overnight lodging in the residential district;

(3) Such areas as may hereafter be designated by an Ordinance or Resolution of the City Council.

Tour buses may stop or stand in the Residential District no longer than 20 minutes solely for the purpose of loading or unloading overnight lodging passengers, with the exception that there shall be no time limitation on tour buses parking or stopping or standing entirely on private property belonging to lodging places where passengers stay overnight.

Tour buses may stop or stand in the designated loading and unloading area on the west side of Junipero Street between Ocean and 7th Avenues no longer than 15 minutes solely for the purpose of loading or unloading passengers.

Section 3. If any part of this Ordinance is found to be invalid, all other parts shall remain valid and enforceable.

Section 4. Section 500.13 and Section 538.3 of the Municipal Code, as enacted by Ordinance No. 77-14, dated March 21, 1977, are hereby rescinded. Any prior Ordinance or Resolution in conflict with this Ordinance shall be disregarded.

Section 5. Effective Date. As an urgency ordinance, this ordinance shall take effect immediately as an emergency measure for preserving the public peace, health, or safety; the reason for its urgency being the need to immediately start implementation of the regulation of tour buses because of the great number of tour buses expected to arrive in the City in the immediate future.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 20th day of May, 1977, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Anderson, Arnold, Brown, Hughes, Norberg
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None

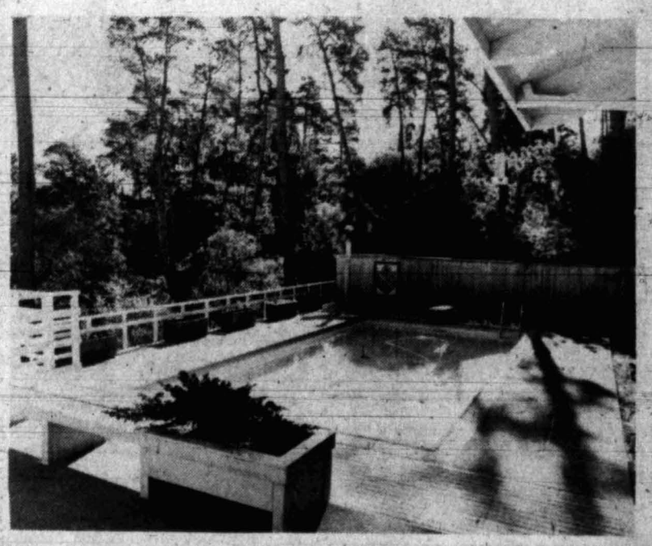
Rancho Rio Vista Home Invites Discovery

The door at the end of the walkway invites discovery of unsuspected surprises such as the niche in the entry for display of a favorite plant, picture or heirloom. Next happy discovery is that you are in an artist's two-story home containing 4,000 sq. ft. of adaptable space — sitting room in master bedroom suite could be a bedroom — so could the studio. Lower level outside entrances invite additional discovery of adaptable uses.

The living room, above, has a built-in banquette around the fireplace, plank floors, indirect lighting and extends to a dining area. Also on this floor is kitchen, laundry, large tile-floored family room with bar (could be formal dining room), powder room and master bedroom suite. Downstairs are three bedrooms, three baths and studio.



The most delightful discovery is a big sundeck, sheltered on two sides by the house, with a swimming pool backed by natural forest on a secluded acre site. There are other unsuspected surprises. We invite you to discover them.

Woods School initiates Spring with festival

It was all sunshine and flowers at the Woods School Annual May Festival held at the school last Friday. In addition to the dance and tumbling presentations, parents held a bake sale and raffle to benefit the community playground project begun last fall. Funds are needed to put the finishing touches on the playground which offers jungle gyms, open play area and even a special skateboard area. Following the dances, families picnicked on the lawn, and were treated to a concert by the Woods School Orchestra and Band.

PRINCIPAL RAY WILSON (left) catches one of the fifth grade tumblers at the Woods School Spring Festival. Third graders (above and right) keep a watchful but delighted eye on the acrobatic feats, which kept the students and their families spellbound.
